NOMINATE BRYAN
ON FIRST BALLOT

Selection of Nebraska Governor for Second Place Agreed at Council of Chiefs.

IN GUIDING CHOICE

Franklin Roosevelt and Frank L. Polk Under Consideration for National Chairman.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Madison Square Garden, New York, July 9.—Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, was nominated for vice president by the democratic national convention early today.

Mr. Bryan was declared nominated at 2:22 a. m., eastern daylight saving time. Then after a few last-minute formalities the convention adjourned sine die at 2:34 a. m., and the delegates for the last time filed wearily out of the old Garden, where their nerves had been frayed and their patience worn out by more than two weeks of the most stirring scenes in all political history.

Madison Square Garden, New York, July 9.—John W. Davis, of West Virginia, nominated for the presidency by the democratic national convention in the breaking up of its history-making deadlock, assumed tonight the active leadership of the party.

After appearing before the convention and sounding the rallying cry of a fighting campaign he went into conference with party managers regarding the nomination for the vice presidency. The stage of actual balloting for second place on the ticket had been reached but just before the first roll call began, a recess of an hour was taken to permit of discussions that would enable selection of a nominee on which all elements could unite.

Walsh and Meredith Out.
Senator Walsh, of Montana, whom the convention had tried to nominate earlier in the day, definitely refused to be considered but the leaders continued their efforts to dissuade him.

E. T. Meredith, of Iowa, also withdrew his name after it had been placed before the convention.

Mr. Davis appeared before the convention shortly before midnight after it had heard Governor Alfred E. Smith voice his praise for the selection finally made to head the party ticket and promise unstinted support for his election.

Those who participated in the conference with Mr. Davis after he addressed the convention in the garden were George Brennan, of Illinois; Senator Walsh, of Montana; Governor Harrison, of Mississippi; Governor Smith, former Governor Stewart, of Montana, and Frank L. Polk, former under secretary of state.

Talk Party Leadership.
The vice presidency was discussed and there also was some discussion of the chairmanship of the democratic national committee. In connection with the latter it was understood Mr. Polk and Franklin D. Roosevelt were discussed.

When the conference with Mr. Davis broke up it was said by some of those who had participated that Governor Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, was being strongly considered for the vice presidential nomination.

Mr. Bryan's name had heretofore been mentioned but it generally was assumed that he was out of the reckoning partly because of the attitude of his brother, who openly opposed

Three Millions' Worth Of Cattle, Sheep and Swine

Only part of the enormous wealth of this state, in the year just passed, consisted of the more than $3,000,000 Georgia had invested in cattle, sheep and swine.

All these had to be fed. Thousands had to be bought. Hundreds of thousands had to be sold.

In this business a considerable part was played by The Atlanta Constitution, whose hundreds of thousands of readers include—outside the city of Atlanta—scores of owners of handsome farmstead homes. Many of these farm-owners have known The Constitution as a faithful family guide for more than half a century.

CHAS. W. BRYAN

Democratic Nominee Known
TWO ATLANTANS IN SCHOOL WITH JOHN W. DAVIS
And Admired by Atlantans

John W. Davis, of West Virginia, democratic nominee for president, is well known in Atlanta and has many personal friends here.

Although many friends have been gained through his identification with federal court proceedings in this city, Mr. Davis has a number of personal acquaintances in Atlanta. Among them is Walter McElreath, Atlanta attorney, and W. W. Gaines, well-known educator, who shared class honors with the democratic nominee at Washington and Lee university, and who still remembers him as a "conscientious, courageous and superior student."

Mr. Davis and Mr. McElreath were close friends and classmates at Washington and Lee, and in 1892 were the only two students of the senior class to receive a special distinction in "moral philosophy."

"A brilliant, superior and conscientious scholar," were the words used by Mr. McElreath in describing the democratic favorite as a college youth.

Mr. Gaines, who is a well-known Atlanta attorney, a member of the board of education, of which he served as president for several years, attended Washington and Lee with Davis in 1891. Davis was recognized as one of the finest students in the school, Mr. Gaines stated, and was extremely popular with the entire student body.

Mr. Gaines has watched his former schoolmate's progress with great interest, and expressed gratification at the latest honor bestowed upon Davis.

Can Be Trusted.
Mr. McElreath, who has kept in touch with Mr. Davis since the two were graduated from the university, declares that he has retained the same characteristics which marked him as a student, and believes that he is "a man the country can trust."

A letter received Wednesday from Mr. Davis, relative to his campaign—which was begun by a small "home-town" alumni association of Washington and Lee university—follows in part:

"I have your letter of the 30th and am grateful for your interest and comforted by your sympathy. As you no doubt know, I have taken no steps in this matter whatever, and have confined myself to saying that such a nomination is something no one could refuse, but that I felt under no constraint to seek it. I shall be happy when the end of the month puts the question beyond debate."

In 1923 Mr. Davis represented the Federal Reserve bank in the clearance case heard in this United States district court, in which the Federal Reserve system was victorious. Mr. Davis appeared here in the case on two different occasions.

Is Great Lawyer.
"Mr. Davis is one of the really great lawyers of the United States," Mr. McElreath declared Wednesday, "and I have been told by several of the country's highest governmental officials that he was the most accomplished solicitor general ever to appear before the supreme court."

"Dignified and reserved as a man—but far from 'snobbish.' He is the kind of man anybody can talk to, and in addition to being a great lawyer, is most courageous and is a gentleman. He is a man the country can trust."

DEMOCRACY CHOSE WISELY AND WELL

Nominee for Presidency Hailed as "Best Furnished Man in Party" Before Convention Opened.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
New York, July 9.—John W. Davis is the best man the democrats could have nominated.

The second best is Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia.

One day last April, when the writer was talking with Senator Glass about the latter's reluctance to let his friends push him forward more energetically, Senator Glass expressed his view with the use of a rather quaint, old-fashioned word occasionally found in the vocabulary of Senator Glass and of other Virginians. He said, as a reason why he himself should not be put forward:

"John W. Davis is the best 'furnished' man for the presidency," was the statement.

What he meant by that inclusive word was that of all the men mentioned Davis has the best equipment of character, intellect and experience.

One of the minor satisfactions about the selection of Davis is that he himself had no part in it.

He, together with Carter Glass, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, and one or two others, who did not come to the front, were the candidates who stood Nomination Is Direct Rebuke to Those Who Seek To Govern by Secret Alliances.

GEORGIANS DIVIDED

Randolph and Morris Declared "Davis Impossible," but Flopped When Landslide Came.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

Convention Hall, New York, July 9.—(Special.)—The stampede to John W. Davis, of West Virginia, on the 103rd ballot today, for the democratic presidential nomination following the formal releasing of delegates, but not the official withdrawal of either McAdoo or Smith, stamps the organized democracy of this nation as true to the bed-rock principles of conservative government and as unalterably opposed to the dictation of any man or cabal that seeks to carry off traffic the party around some merchantable commodity.

The nomination is, therefore, a stinging rebuke to the attempted McAdoo-Bryan convention domination, and is a protest that rings around America against the interferences of secret political societies that would array church against church and thus break down the fundamental principles of the democratic party as to its guarantees of religious or racial liberties.

No nomination was ever more enthusiastically made following eight days of weary and fruitless balloting, and under the circumstance no nomination could have possibly been made that reflected more correctly the temper and the spirit of the convention.

McAdoo Used Club.
With a block of delegates, instructed by primary and convention and hog-tied under state unit rules sufficiently strong to bar the progress of the convention, Mr. McAdoo whipped back a convention choice time and again although not at any time even approximately the preference of the assembled delegates for the nomination.

This condition, accentuated by big stick methods of one side and by organized fanaticism on the other, continued on Page 6, Column 3.

New York, July 9.—Silence greeted the news of the nomination of John W. Davis when it was received at the palatial headquarters of William Gibbs McAdoo on the top floor of the Vanderbilt hotel.

The candidate, who for the most part of the balloting had led the field, refused to comment on the nomination.

Instead, word came from the private suite that the Californian, with his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, daughter of the late President Wilson, and their two daughters, would sail Thursday on the steamship Homeric for an extended visit in Europe.

McAdoo's CONGRATULATION TO DAVIS IS BRIEF.
New York, July 9.—William G. McAdoo, from his hotel tonight, sent the following telegram to John W. Davis, the nominee of the democratic party for president:

"Honorable John W. Davis,
"New York city.
"Please accept congratulations on your nomination."
"William Gibbs McAdoo."

This was Mr. McAdoo's only public comment on Mr. Davis' nomination.

AL SMITH WIRE HEARTIEST SUPPORT.
New York, July 9.—Governor Smith tonight sent the following telegram to John W. Davis, the democratic presidential nominee:

"Sincere congratulations. Best wishes for success, and my promise of hearty support."
"ALFRED E. SMITH."

Further Satisfaction Upon Inter-Allied Debts Given to France by English Premier in Settlement.

Paris, July 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—The premiers of France and Great Britain today decided upon American arbitration as a way out of their differences respecting the application of the Dawes plan.

Prime Minister MacDonald conceded to Premier Herriot that the reparation commission should not be robbed of its right to say when Germany is in default on that plan and M. Herriot, in exchange, agreed to give up France's preponderance of votes in the commission.

The French statesmen consented that an American be called in to sit with the commission and to vote on the question of whether Germany at any time is failing to carry out her obligations under the plan.

Mr. MacDonald gave M. Herriot further satisfaction respecting the inter-allied debts, assuring him that Great Britain would consider the question with due regard for all of the elements bearing upon it.

Securely Settled Later.
Both agreed to pursue the question of security either through the League of Nations or otherwise until a definite settlement was reached.

The result of the conference between the two premiers is regarded in French circles as strengthening the Herriot cabinet and likely to save it from disaster in the senate tomorrow. It is remarked in opposition circles, however, that the abandonment of M. Herriot of French preponderance in the reparation commission may provoke criticism.

It is understood tonight that the interpellations will take place in the senate tomorrow as scheduled, and that Raymond Poincare, former premier, will speak for the purpose of making clear his own attitude on reparations whether he assail the cabinet or not.

The British prime minister, receiving the representatives of the press after his conference with the French premier, said:

"We have succeeded in making a substantial beginning toward a full accord between France and Great Britain."

Declaring there was no intention to postpone the London conference, he added: "What an effect it would produce if we postponed it even for a short time. We have invited the"

No Compromise

Davis Declares

"Liberal Principles Must and Will Prevail," Says Nominee in Statement.

New York, July 9.—John W. Davis, the democratic presidential nominee, declared in a statement late today:

"There can be no compromise with reaction. Liberal principles must and will prevail. It is the mandate of the hour and I shall obey it."

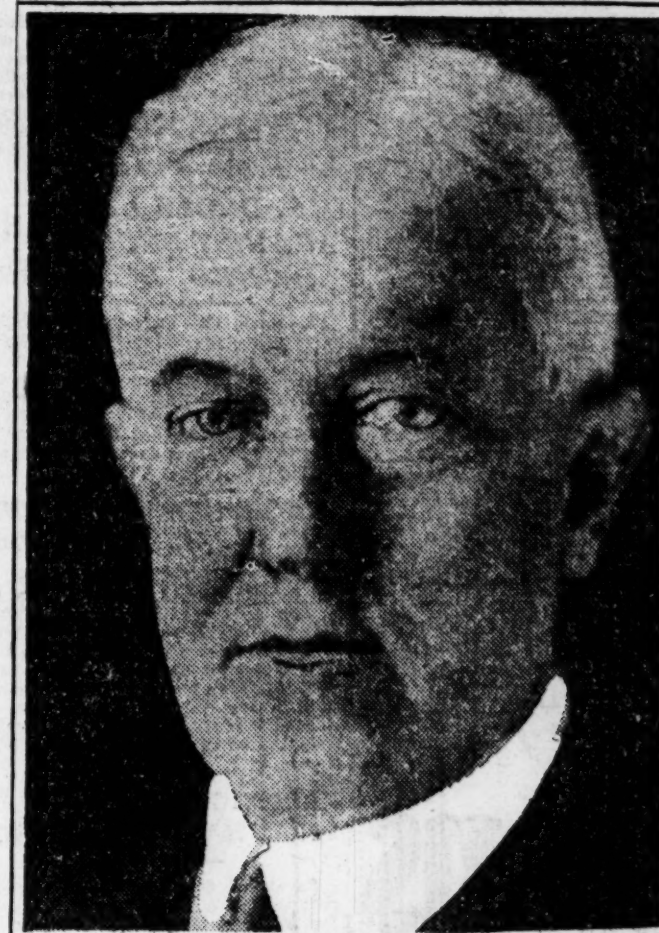

Mr. Davis' statement follows.

Pays Tribute to Convention.
"The history of national conventions which has unfolded in freedom or frankness of discussion, or whose actions have been more clearly the result of the unfettered wishes of the assembled delegates. The resolution and endurance they have exhibited is but proof of their sense of the solemn responsibilities to the country under which they acted and of the supreme vitality of democracy."

"I cannot but feel deeply sensible of the honor done me by the convention."

New York Governor Captures Convention, Pledging Himself and Followers to Whole Ticket.

Madison Square Garden, New York, July 9.—Amid a great demonstration and while thousands sang "East Side, West Side," Alfred E. Smith appeared tonight before the democratic national convention in Madison Square Garden. The thousands who idolize the New York governor, all but burst their throats and almost lifted the roof of the great garden when he appeared on the speakers' platform.

The great crowd cheered the governor so loud and so long that Chairman Walsh almost despaired of getting the audience quiet enough to hear him, but when the governor himself held up his hand for silence, the crowd quickly quieted down to hear him.

"Not being familiar with the rules of the convention," he began, "I am afraid that the applause will be taken out of my time and I request that you refrain until I finish. I felt that it would be useless for me to extend a word of welcome to the delegates and their friends, because the great city of New York made as complete a job as could be made of it."

Davis Had Checkered
Ride to Nomination.

New York, July 9.—John W. Davis had an up and down career during the 103 ballots which culminated in his nomination at Madison Square Garden Wednesday.

Davis started with 31 votes on the first ballot, working up slowly to 129½ on the 23rd. After sticking there for several ballots, he slipped to 30½ on the 58th ballot. Then came the long, final climb. After a brief sag around the 88th ballot, he leaped up, reaching 139 on the 94th. On the 99th, he crossed 200. On the first ballot Wednesday, Davis polled 316 and on the 102nd, 415 2/3. Nomination was made on the 103rd by acclamation, while many states were still trying to change their votes.

Nominee Sounds First Bugle of Campaign From Platform in Convention Arena.

Madison Square Garden, New York, July 9.—John W. Davis acknowledged his nomination for the presidency by the democratic convention by appearing before the convention by invitation tonight and giving a pledge of his devotion to the cause of the party.

The nominee began by an expression of gratitude and appreciation of the honor that had come to him.

"But grateful as I am of this great honor I think even more of the duties you have given me to perform. But I take comfort when I look at the banners displayed throughout this hall and reflect that they are not the standards of a phantom army but that they represent an army of millions of democrats ready as they always have been to battle for liberty and righteousness."

Creed Is National.
"We are a national party, and it must be, I believe because we profess a national creed. The great principles of the democratic party—honesty in government, that public office is a public trust, equal rights to all men and special privilege to none, fair and equal taxation, an open door of opportunity to the humblest citizen in all the land, liberty at home and abroad—these principles are as revered to the east as to the west, and revered by the north and by the south."

"And this great army is ready to give battle again to any who challenge any part of it. On this platform all progressives can stand, and to this banner all liberals can rally, and for this cause all democrats can and I know, will stand united."

Sun Shines Clear.
"I know this convention has had its differences, but all these things were but the thunderstorm that cleared the clouds away and left shining on the sun of coming victory and success."

"When I am duly advised of the nomination it will be my duty to speak further on these and kindred themes. I shall therefore do no more at the moment than to express my confidence that I shall lead in this campaign a united, a militant, and a victorious party."

WAVE OF JOY SWEEPS
HALL OF CONVENTION

Animosities Forgotten as States Group Standards About That of Victorious Nominee.

New York, July 9.—Welling up through all the bitterness of the days and nights that have gone, a mighty, formless, roaring shout, like a great sigh of relief blasted its way through the dingy trappings of Madison Square Garden today to tell that a nomination had come; that a decision had been reached, and that John W. Davis, of West Virginia, had been named by acclamation to carry the democratic standard for 1924.

At last, against all the bitter currents of the sweltering days and nights that lay behind, the deadlocked convention that will live in political history forever had broken through the long jam of conflicting opinion. Almost without realizing what it had done, it hurled itself as one man into the rush that brought Davis votes flooding faster than clerks could write the record. Resistless as the surge of the sea, the Davis tide engulfed the wearied host and the battle was over.

Vote Jam Breaks.
More than 100 times Governor Brandon, of Alabama, had risen in his place beneath the state standard to send out the first vote on each succeeding ballot; "A-A-L-A-B-A-M-A-A," twenty-four for Un-n-n-der-r-r-wood-d."

So he voted the state on the 103rd roll call today, but before the last name on the roll had been called—the Canal Zone—it was clear that the deadlock was over and that Davis had become the choice of the individual delegates beyond the shadow of a doubt.

All about the floor state leaders were shouting for recognition to change their votes and swing in line with the rising tide. Brennan, of Illinois, was yelling to be heard; Roosevelt, in New York's delegation, was up on his crutches waving for attention of the chair. There was din and confusion everywhere.

Walsh Uses Last Gavel.
Pounding with the last of the gavels that remained, Chairman Walsh sought to get order out of the confusion and write the formal record of what was already done. At last he saw the Alabama, champion of the senator who was the only serious contender on that last ballot.

"The chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama, Governor Brandon," he shouted into the rising din.

In recognition of its time-honored custom, the surging mass on the floor paused to listen to that clarion call

POLICEMAN FIRED FOR TAKING PART IN KLAN DISORDER

Philadelphia, July 9.—Harry Trout, an upper Darby policeman, has been dismissed from the force after being identified as one of ten hooded and robed men who burned a cross in the woods near there to terrorize a troop of negro Boy Scouts in camp.

According to the police, Trout confessed last night that he and his friends wished to frighten away the negroes, who had driven white boys away from a swimming hole near their camp. Shots were fired in the demonstration.

Warrants charging the ten men with inciting to riot and illegal use of firearms will be issued, it is stated.

Four men who the police say admitted they were members of the Ku Klux Klan, have been arrested at Ardmore for a demonstration near that suburb last Thursday night, in which two policemen were shot. The prisoners are charged with unlawful assembly, assault and battery with firearms and attempt to kill.

Savannah, Ga., July 9.—(Special.) Thinking he had found a valuable parcel on the Ogeechee road, in Chatham county, today, G. D. Stevens, of this city, paused, picked up the package, opened it hastily and then quickly laid it down.

It contained the leg of a grown negro, severed as with a saw at the hip. Mystery surrounds the growl some find as no accident or operation has been reported to authorities here. An investigation has been begun.

MUSSOLINI CURBS LIBERTY OF PRESS

Rome, July 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—The decision of the council of ministers to put into immediate execution the rules relating to the press which Premier Mussolini drew up in July, 1923, is commented upon by the Rome newspapers and all of them except the fascist press protest against what they consider a violation of the liberty of the press. The Giornale d'Italia, however, declares that the order must be applied impartially to the fascist as well as the anti-fascist papers.

The new regulations now coming into force authorize the prefect of each province to intervene whenever a newspaper "attempts to discredit cal or religious institutions, or renders the country or the prestige of political difficult the work of discipline and of the guarantee of law and public order entrusted to the government."

BAPTISTS PLANNING TO END BIG CAMPAIGN

Nashville, Tenn., July 9.—Plans are being rapidly perfected in all the states of the Southern Baptist convention for the completion this year of the Baptist 75 million campaign and the projection of the forward program to follow, it was announced here today by Dr. C. E. Burtis, general director of the forward program, upon his arrival from his former home at Columbia, S. C., to assume his new post.

In company with Dr. L. R. Scarborough, general director of the 75 million campaign, he will visit practically all the Southern Baptist summer assemblies during the next few weeks, where the two programs will be fully set out. The Southern Baptist convention has asked for a budget of $7,500,000 for its own work for 1925 and it is assured the states will want at least an equal amount for their state enterprises.

WORLD COURT URGED BY BAR COMMITTEE

Philadelphia, July 9.—Belief that a permanent court of international justice would "give precision by political decision to conflicts arising from different conceptions of international rights" was expressed today in the report of the international law committee of the American Bar association, presented by James Brown Scott, Washington, the committee chairman.

The report said "your committee believes that not the least benefit which a permanent court of international justice would confer upon the nations, is to give precision by judicial decision to conflicts arising from different conceptions of international rights and of international duties, thus tending to secure a uniform, universal application of them."

The Abeona, which had been under surveillance for some time by immigration agents, was sighted yesterday coming into Barataria Bay at a high rate of speed. The coast guard cutter, on watch for the schooner, immediately gave chase and after a six-hour race through bays and passages, overhauled the schooner and sent men aboard. The passengers, four captured in the engine room and other parts of the vessel, were rounded up and brought to the immigration station. Among them was a Hungarian woman.

FALLS 30 FEET, CHILD IS DYING

Edna Biddy, 8-year-old son of J. M. Biddy of 220 East Hunter street, is believed to be dying at Grady hospital as a result of a fall of nearly 30 feet through the skylight of the two-story building at 218 East Hunter street, occupied by Dittler Brothers, printers, late Monday afternoon. The youngster suffered a fractured skull, and physicians stated late Wednesday night that there is practically no chance for his recovery.

The child was playing on the roof of the building with two youthful companions at the time of the accident, and while it has not been definitely determined, it is thought that he ran too near the edge of the skylight, losing his balance, plunged to the concrete floor below. Grover, William, 6, of 216 East Hunter street, and his brother, Terrell, 8, who were playing with the Biddy child at the time, were unable to give a comprehensive account of the mishap.

A negro porter in the building, attracted by the noise of the youngster's fall, carried him to his home next door, and he was taken to Grady hospital immediately.

Suicide Verdict.

A death reported to have been suicidal by a coroner's jury was that of a negro woman, Parley Burns, who died from effects of lysoal which she is said to have drunk at her home, 61 Bush street, and inquest was held Wednesday at the undertaking establishment of Dunn Brothers.

Stiff Joints Now Limbered Up By New Oil Formula

Remarkable New Discovery
Gives Quick, Soothing Relief For Creaky, Swollen, Painful Joints.

German chemistry that has given to the world aspirin for headache pain and novocaine for painless dentistry, now comes forward with another discovery that makes enlarged, swollen, pain-racked joints a thing of the past. A combination of certain oils, known as Buhler Oil, has been discovered, which is simply rubbed on and disappears in a few seconds, showing how quickly it penetrates and is absorbed by the tissues. Even in the most severe and stubborn cases, almost instant relief has been obtained.

Swollen, painful and distorted stiff joints, whether it be in the ankle, knee, thigh, shoulder, neck, wrist, elbow or fingers of your hand, are due to some infection which has invaded the tissue lining the joints. This, in most instances, can be traced to internal poisons, such as a blind pig pocket in a tooth or a diseased tonsil giving off poisons, which are carried in the blood to the joints thereby causing an infection of the delicate membrane lining the joints and causing the joints to become enlarged, swollen, creaky and extremely painful.

Buhler Oil, when applied to the affected joints, is readily absorbed by the tissues and penetrates quickly to the aching joint, neutralizing the pain-causing poisons in much the same way as aspirin. Buhler Oil neutralizes an acid stomach, giving instant relief.

Get a bottle of Buhler Oil today and try a few applications in one evening. It gives quick results because it is instantly absorbed and contains a special ingredient which at once penetrates to the poison infected membrane in the pain-causing swollen joint. Your doctor will tell you it is a guarantee to help you or it costs you nothing. Sold by all drug stores and health food stores. E. H. Cone, A. L. $250,000 Realized From Power Stock For Big Development

That the $250,000 raised recently through successful sale of 7 per cent first preferred stock, for which investors paid 100 cents cash on the dollar, will be used in pushing its 1924 hydro-electric development program in northeast Georgia, was announced Tuesday by the Georgia Railway and Power company.

A statement issued by the power company declared that the raising of funds for hydro-electrical developments in Georgia was indicative of the faith investors have in the future of the state.

"It is gratifying to know," said the statement, "that investors have sufficient faith in Georgia to put their money into the stock of this company and make possible the carrying out of the large program of water power developments."

Authorization of a change in the company's charter for the new issue of stock will be made at a meeting of the stockholders slated to be held at 11 o'clock on the morning of July 20. The issue also has been approved by the Georgia public service commission before the stock can be issued.

In announcing successful sale of its stock, the power company called attention to the fact that work on the 1924 development program is being pushed to completion. It is the company's plan to spend approximately $8,000,000 for new water power plants and transmission lines during this year. This program calls for the completion of the Terrova development located between Tallulah Falls and Lakemont. The mile-long tunnel which will conduct the water of the Tallulah river from Lakemont to the power house at Terrova was finished July 4, and it is believed the plant will be in full operation by the first of the year.

Work is also progressing rapidly on the new Yonah development. Pouring of concrete on the dam was started several weeks ago and the project will be completed during 1925. After the work at Terrova is finished, construction forces will be moved up the Tallulah river to Nacoochee, where still another development will be started.

Drugged and Wed. Young Woman Says; Seeks Annulment

Charging that she was drugged while on an automobile ride and later married at the home of an officer while semi-conscious, Mrs. W. C. Todd, 18, filed suit Wednesday in superior court to annul her marriage to W. C. Todd, formerly of Detroit. Mrs. Todd alleged a case of illegal and void marriage. She charges that on April 21, 1923, Todd took her for a ride over Atlanta, the ride lasting until late in the night. She says she partook of a drink she believed to be light wine, but that it rendered her unconscious.

After an alleged marriage ceremony, says the petition, Mrs. Todd's knowledge of events began to return, and she awoke the next morning, she says, hardly remembering anything that occurred, except that some kind of a marriage ceremony had been gone through. She thereupon separated from Todd, she says. Mrs. Todd is represented by Attorney C. C. Hornbuckle.

INDUSTRIAL EXPO PLANS TO BE LAID

Further plans for Georgia's participation in the great Southern Industrial exposition to be held in New York next January will be made this morning at a meeting of the Georgia committee in charge of arrangements at the chamber of commerce.

The exposition, which will be held January 3-14, 1925, in the Grand Central Palace, will feature every angle of the south's remarkable industrial progress in recent years and the wonderful opportunities still open here. Eleven southern states have already signified their intention of taking part and The Manufacturers Record has offered $5,000 worth of advertising as a prize for the best state exhibit.

In the effort to win this prize for Georgia four cities in the state, Atlanta, Savannah, Macon and Columbus have undertaken to arrange individual exhibits promoted by the chambers of commerce in these cities. The state-wide show is in the hands of the Georgia association.

The meeting today was called by E. B. Walker, of Savannah, chairman for

NEW INHABITANTS FLOCK TO ATLANTA RECORDS DISCLOSE

About 1,000 new inhabitants have moved into Atlanta since May 1, it was estimated by M. E. Coleman, director of the census and attendance bureau of the school department Saturday. The figure is based on records showing that 200 new families have secured school entrance credentials for children.

"Of course, many families may have moved to the city who have not registered with the department and many may have moved away without notifying us, so the estimate cannot be considered authoritative," Mr. Coleman said.

SPEAKERS VOICE PLEA FOR VIADUCT MEASURE

As a peaceful preliminary to the expected fight over the Atlanta viaduct bill when it comes up in the Georgia senate this morning, several persons interested in the measure held an open discussion before a number of members of the upper house Wednesday afternoon. All those who spoke were in favor of the measure or expressed themselves as not opposed to it. The purpose of the hearing was to better acquaint members of the senate with the bill, its purpose and effect on all parties concerned.

Those who participated in the discussion were Reuben R. Arnold, serving on a committee appointed by Mayor Walter Sims to advocate passage of the measure; John L. Tye, attorney for the Western and Atlantic railway, lessee of the land affected if the measure is passed; Paul S. Etheridge, member of the Fulton county commissioners; J. H. Johnston, engineer of the state railroad commission, and John W. Grant, owner of the Kimball, which will also be affected if the bill is passed.

The hearing was presided over by Miss Bessie Kempton, member of the house from Fulton, and author of the resolution calling for amendment to the charter of Atlanta to permit construction of viaducts across railroad tracks at Pryor street and Central avenue. The resolution was adopted by the house last session, and consideration of it in the senate has been twice postponed and is scheduled to come up at this morning's session.

All those who spoke at the hearing seemed to be unanimous in their conviction that construction of the viaducts would in no way decrease the value of the state's property which would be affected, but, on the contrary, would enhance it. Mr. Tye stated that the railroad which he represented would have no objection to the proposed viaducts, and John W. Grant said he believed that ultimately their construction would benefit the hotel of which he is owner.

REV. OVERBY STRICKEN IN MIDST OF SERMON

Camden, Tenn., July 9.—The Rev. E. R. Overby, southern Methodist pastor at Huntington, Tenn., suffered a stroke last night in the midst of his sermon to the Lexington district conference in session here, and had not regained consciousness this morning. A large crowd was in attendance on the service, which was summarized when the preacher collapsed in the pulpit.

OFFICERS PUSHING SEARCH FOR BANDITS

Every effort is being exerted by the plainclothes department to apprehend two young and unmasked bandits who shortly after 1 o'clock Wednesday morning "stuck up" and robbed Charles E. Shepard, cashier of the Mitchell street branch of the Citizens & Southern Banking company, of approximately $1,500 in change, a gold watch and a folder containing valuable papers.

The robbery, which took place almost in front of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Methodist church, Ponce de Leon and Piedmont avenues, was one of the boldest reported to the police recently.

"I was going east down Ponce de Leon avenue toward home, and when I reached a point almost in front of the church, two men stepped up in front of me, one covering me with a pistol and demanding that I hold up my hands and the other ransacking my pockets," Mitchell told Call Of News H. P. Shiley and John F. Lowe, who were dispatched to the scene.

W. B. McLeod, of 59 Courtland street, reported to the police Wednesday morning that he had been robbed shortly after 11 o'clock Tuesday night by an unidentified negro bandit, who relieved him of something like $57.

This holdup was staged almost in sight of McLeod's home and was the occasion of a desperate struggle between McLeod and the robber, he told officers.

RESENTS KU KLUX BRAND ON GEORGIA

Convention Hall, New York, July 9. (Special).—When the Georgia delegation reached New York and ascertained that the spirit of the militant democracy of this country was opposed to the domination of the party by any secret organization, several members began an immediate propaganda to dispel the generally prevailing idea that Georgia's delegation had any Ku Klux stain upon it, or that even any of its members belonged to that organization. It was obvious from the day McAdoo arrived that a studied effort was being made from his headquarters to repudiate the Klan openly, though affiliating with the Klan officials in all the secret meetings.

Major John S. Cohen, of Atlanta, who was one of the McAdoo convention leaders, openly declared that there were no members of the Georgia delegation who were Klansmen to his knowledge.

Miss Morris Interviewed.

In view of these facts and the well-known activity of Georgia Klan officials for McAdoo to the very last of his final and crushing defeat, an interview, published prominently in the Evening World this afternoon, with the daughter of Judge Newt Morris, of Cobb county, who is one of the delegates-at-large from Georgia, and who is herself an assistant secretary to Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, is most significant. The story in the Evening World today in full is as follows: "More than a few members of the Georgia delegation to the democratic national convention are incensed that Georgians have generally been lumped together as members of the Ku Klux Klan, according to Miss Lucille Morris, daughter of Judge N. A. Morris, of Marietta, one of Georgia's delegates-at-large.

"Probably there are members of the Klan in the Georgia delegation," said Miss Morris. "Of course, I don't know for a certainty, but it's more than likely. The Klan is very strong in our state and many of my best friends are members of it. But we, for one family, are not members of the Klan. We hate and loathe it and its methods. My father has fought it, many years. Many Georgians are violently opposed to it. Others simply ignore it, feeling that if there is any good in the organization, it will come out in time and that if it's wholly bad, it will not and die.

Scouts Power of Ku Klux. "It would be silly to say that all Georgia is Ku Klux, or even that all members of the Georgia delegation are Ku Kluxers. If the Klan is as powerful in Georgia as you New Yorkers seem to think, why did it permit my father, who is known to be opposed to it, to be chosen chairman of the democratic state convention we held a little while ago?

"No, indeed, we're not all Ku Kluxers down in Georgia, and we resent it a bit that we're all classified that way. The only reason we can attribute it to is that we're all for William G. McAdoo. Why, McAdoo was born in Georgia. He was born in my home town. We know him. We love him."

Jackson Passes Law To Limit Southern Speed to Six Miles

Jackson, Ga., July 9.—(Special).—An ordinance adopted by the Jackson city council would limit the speed of Southern railway trains within the corporate limits of Jackson to six miles per hour. The ordinance will become effective July 13, it is pointed out.

Conviction of violation of the ordinance is subject to a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100. The ordinance was adopted at a meeting of council July 7.

Driggers Is Rushed To Chatham Jail For Safe-Keeping

Savannah, Ga., July 9.—Oria Driggers, who shot and killed Burt DeLoach at Nails Park, four miles from Reidsville, last week, was lodged in the Chatham county jail this morning for safe keeping.

Driggers was brought here from the Reidsville jail, where he has been confined since the shooting, by Kipp Smith, deputy sheriff of Tattall county, and Leland Kennedy, a friend of the sheriff. The trip was made by motor.

HOW IS YOUR COLON TODAY?

A celebrated physician recently said: "Tell me how your colon is working and I will tell you how you feel. If your colon is emptying itself regularly and completely every day you feel young, energetic and vigorous, but if your colon is lazy and lacking in tone, so that the poisons are retained and re-absorbed into your system, you feel weak, nervous and old."

Colon poisoning (auto-intoxication) is the most common cause of chronic diseases, especially appendicitis, indigestion, constipation, sick headaches, rheumatism and other toxic diseases. Millions suffer without realizing how easily the cause can be removed. Tell your druggist to send you a bottle of Colotone—the colon tonic. It will quickly restore tone to the muscular walls of your colon and within a short time your toxic condition will disappear. You will feel young, energetic and vigorous, for the cause of your constipation and self-poisoning will have been permanently removed. The more of Colotone you take, the less you have to take. It is just the opposite with other laxatives. Every druggist has been instructed to refund the price if you are not thoroughly delighted with Colotone.—(adv.)

GEORGIA FOOD DEALERS NAME OFFICIALS TODAY

Savannah, Ga., July 9.—(Special). Election of officers and selection of meeting place with discussion and adoption of several important resolutions will feature the business sessions tomorrow of the closing day of the third annual convention of the Retail Food Dealers' Association of Georgia, assembled here. Atlanta will probably be the next meeting place. Ernest Bell, Atlanta, and the other present officers, including both secretary and treasurer, who are from Atlanta, are mentioned for reelection. Nine new directors will be selected.

Some of the important resolutions to be acted upon are in brief: One to continue activity to urge laws prohibiting sale of inferior self-rising flour; recommendation of the national proposed "fair price bill" permitting manufacturers to set a price upon articles; that continuing support be given to the enforcement of all pure food laws of state and federal government; that all stores close all day on Sundays and at 7 o'clock at night each week day.

Discussion and papers on improvement of the "service" rendered by food dealers and interesting discussions on the "chain stores" and their competition, engaged the association this morning. The delegation, several hundred in all, took in the resorts around Savannah, including Tybee, this afternoon and night.

GUARDSMAN-HIKER IS SHINING SHOES TO PAY EXPENSES

Sergeant W. C. Shyrigh, hiking from Birmingham to New York city, arrived in Atlanta Wednesday night. He will stop here only long enough to make his expenses for one day by shining a few pairs of shoes. Sergeant Shyrigh, a member of Company "I," 1st Alabama national guard, left Birmingham two weeks ago, and expects to reach New York within 10 weeks.

In addition to a 25-pound kit, strapped to his back, he carries a medium sized case which contains a shoe-polishing outfit and a few other odds and ends of a hiker's life. He is financing his trip solely with money obtained by shining shoes and has no set price, receiving any amount given him.

Sergeant Shyrigh has worked on the footstep of many of every city between Atlanta and Birmingham, not to mention many other city officials. Today he contemplates visiting the governor and demonstrating the superior technique that has gained him fame on his journey. Each subject who comes under Sergeant Shyrigh's expert brush records his name in a record book, and they run from labors to Alabama and back to presidents to office boys—and even newspaper reporters.

After leaving Atlanta, Sergeant Shyrigh will follow the route of the Bankhead highway, by way of Spartanburg, Charlotte, Richmond, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Philadelphia, Trenton, and then New York—his goal.

WEALTHY CONVICTS ALLOWED LIBERTY, AGENTS DECLARE

Chicago, July 9.—Reports that wealthy violators of the oldstead law had been permitted liberty from workhouse sentences for $50 a day are under investigation by the grand jury. Phillip Grossman, saloon-keeper, whose pardon by President Coolidge was overruled by federal judges, and Lawrence J. Crowley, wealthy brewer, are named by federal agents who said they have witnesses who saw them in cabarets and at basketball games while supposed to be at labor in the workhouse.

Georgia Ships Hides To Europe's Markets Direct for First Time

Macon, Ga., July 9.—(Special).—Georgia flappers, who import footwear from Paris will probably find out about this time next year that their feet are encased in Bibb county cow hides. Two cars of Georgia hides leave Macon tomorrow for export, one going to France and the other to Italy. This is the first time that Georgia hides have been shipped direct from local warehouses to Europe.

CHICAGO REALTOR SEEN AFTER 'DISAPPEARANCE'

Chicago, July 9.—Harold Bradley, head of a large Chicago real estate firm, who disappeared June 25 from his home and office, and had not been heard from since, was in Chicago two days after that, Percy Johnstone, an architect, said today. Johnstone, who owed Bradley $900 commission on a contract, said Bradley came to his office and offered to settle the debt for $250, stating he needed the money. The Johnstone was done.

Davis' Home Town Goes Wild in Joy Over Nomination

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 9.—The home town of John W. Davis, nominated today as democratic candidate for president, received the news of the honor bestowed upon its citizen with a burst of excitement and cheering that was as genuine as it was spontaneous.

Hardly had the news of his nomination been flashed over the telegraph wires when crowds, gathered in front of newspaper offices, started a wild demonstration through the streets and soon were joined by bands that seemed to spring from nowhere. Automobiles raced through the city with signal devices sending out a clamor of noise, while bells and whistles added to the din.

FOR SEVEN YEARS WOMAN WHO POSED AS MAN ARRESTED

Marshalltown, Iowa, July 9.—Ruth Bundy, 33, who for seven years has masqueraded in men's clothing, and posed as a man known as Walter Bundy, is in the county jail today following her arrest on Monday at Rhodes, this county, charged with threatening to commit a public offense.

Three years ago, at Rhodes, "Walter" Bundy was married to Miss Elizabeth West, of Rhodes, and the wife claims that during the time they have lived together she never had discovered her supposed husband's deception. Members of Miss Bundy's family, however, say they have been aware of the deception.

During the seven years that she has posed as a man Miss Bundy has been employed as a farm hand, track laborer. It is said that men with whom she has worked never have suspected her sex.

The World's Largest Safe

What is said to be the largest safe in the world has been installed in the new Fourth Federal Reserve bank in Cleveland, Ohio. The steel vestibule, or frame, weighs 20,000 pounds, while the door and the remainder of the gigantic vault weighs 300,000 pounds more, says Popular Science Monthly.

The vault is 13 feet square and has an all-around thickness of 4 feet of the toughest chromium steel, presenting a hopeless problem of safe-breakers.

Saving the Bison.

A few years ago the bison, or American buffalo, of the western plains, was threatened with extinction. Now, though, this danger is past, says Popular Science Monthly. Where there were only 1,100 head of bison in the United States and Canada twenty years ago, there are about 15,000 today—a fact that is due largely to the efforts of the American Bison society in stopping the wholesale slaughter of the animals.

Six American airplanes are used in Tampico, Mexico, to carry payrolls to the oil fields of that vicinity.

43 NEW TRAFFIC CASES ARE MADE WEDNESDAY

Only 43 new cases, the largest number made in several days, were docketed against drivers by police Wednesday. Twenty-two drivers are charged with violating traffic ordinances, eight with speeding, six with reckless driving, five with violating the dinner ordinance and two with operating automobiles while drunk.

Thirteen drivers were fined in recorder's court during the day, eight being charged with violating traffic ordinances, four with speeding and one with driving a car while drunk. John Brown, negro, who resides in the rear of 64 Forrest avenue, received the most severe punishment when in addition to a fine of $51, on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, he was bound over to the state courts under $500 bond.

The following were fined Wednesday in police court:

Barbershop Jokes. Keeping up appearances in a beauty parlor seems a ticklish business, and now there is a deal of hair splitting in the distinction between barber and "bobber." Are the bobbers within the meaning of the statutes requiring license for barbers? Certainly a fair job of trimming may be done without benefit of license... that woman "Delish!" If license by examination is required, the candidates should be spared the learning of barbershop stories.

But why all the bother over the licensing of bobbers? The real need is to license barbershop jokes. Just think of the unlicensed jokes knocking around the world—and barbershop jokes do have the longest whiskers. Barbershop liberty is too often mistaken for license. Who knows the Thief of Baghdad may be lurking behind a bottle of hair cream. Some day the old nursery rhyme may read, "Hark! Hark! the dogs do bark. The bobbers are snipping the down. Some are wags, all have ears. And new licenses through the town. Old tags don't go on new motor cars; old tags shouldn't go on new beauty parlors.—The Nation's Business.

SOLONS PREPARE FOR ACTION TODAY

After remaining in session for the longest period during any one day of the 1924 session—three hours and forty minutes—the Georgia house of representatives faces Thursday a calendar which includes some of the most important legislative questions to be faced this year.

Today, as special order of business, the house will consider the Peach county measure, a bill aimed at creation of Peach county, passed last week in the senate. The new county would be formed, under the provisions of the bill, from portions of the counties of Houston and Marion. The motor bus bill, which would put all automobile bus lines operated on regular schedule in the state under the supervision of the public service commission as "common carriers," is also on the calendar for today.

At the Wednesday session the house passed a senate bill continuing a state board and harbor commission investigation as to possibility and advisability of developing a state-owned port. The bill provides, however, that no state funds are to be used to carry on those investigations.

The measure was supported by Representative New, of Laurens, in lengthy speech, and opposed by Representative Atkinson, of Chatham. It passed by unanimous vote.

Another bill, allowing mortgages to be taken on crops before the seed is planted, was passed in the house on Wednesday.

About an hour of the session was

COOK GETS MAD, CLEARS OUT KITCHEN

Slays Everything In Sight And Gloats Over the Guesome Deed.

"Our cook got in a rage yesterday and went on a rampage that threatened to turn the house upside down," said a well-known club woman to a friend she met while down town shopping.

"We were all quite excited about it, but I'm glad it happened, now that it is all over, for I'm sure we won't have any more trouble like we had before. We had just hired her, and when she went in the kitchen to get dinner she complained that the place was overrun with roaches and water bugs. She said the last cook was simply a—well, I won't tell you what she said, but she called up the drugist and had a bottle of Fly-Flu sent out and soon cleared out every one of the pests. Oh, yes; it is sure death to all sorts of insects, moths, roaches, flies, mosquitoes and bedbugs, too."

You can get Fly-Flu at drug, grocery and other retail stores. It acts like magic if you follow the directions carefully. Substitutes can't and won't do the work. Fly-Flu also kills moths (and their eggs). It is harmless to humans, leaves no unpleasant odor, cannot possibly stain, and has 55 uses in every home.—(adv.)

devoted to renewed debate on acceptance of the bill for the creation of Peach county. The legislature spent next Wednesday in that city, inspecting the University of Georgia, College of Agriculture and State Normal school. Although the house voted overwhelmingly to accept the invitation on Tuesday, the question was reopened when Representative Knight, of Berrien, introduced a motion to reconsider. In addition to Mr. Knight, Representative Culpeper, of Fayette, spoke against accepting the invitation, having his position on the ground that Wednesday was an undesirable day. He said he would gladly support such a plan if set for a Monday, Friday or Saturday.

Representatives Barrett, of Stephens, and Pope, of Walker, spoke in favor of accepting the invitation. On an aye and nay vote, the motion to reconsider was lost by 119 to 53.

An unsuccessful attempt was made Wednesday afternoon to hold a session on the bill, but the session was adjourned to consider the four-year term bill and the biennial session bill. Lack of a quorum again forced adjournment.

Appropriations Sought.
The house committee on appropriations met Wednesday afternoon and heard from supporters of several bills asking for appropriations for different institutions and departments.

Fred Bridges, assistant commissioner of agriculture, explained the purpose of a bill asking for an additional appropriation for next year for the chemical laboratory of the department of agriculture. He explained that the present appropriation of $2,500 for analyses of calcium arsenate samples allowed the employment of only one chemist, with the result that the department was so far behind in making these analyses that many of them would reach the farmers too late to be of any value.

It is too late to remedy the situation this year," he said, "so we are not asking any additional appropriations until next year." An additional $5,000 was asked for in order to buy additional laboratory equipment and to employ another chemist.

Professor J. C. Harris, principal of the State School for the Deaf, at Cave Spring, spoke explaining the necessity for a deficiency appropriation for that institution to take care of an indebtedness they have been forced to make this year. He explained how the appropriation asked for in 1923, of $80,000, was cut to $70,000 and said the deficiency would amount to $10,000.

Schools In Need.
Professor Harris told something of the work being done at Cave Spring. He told how deaf children sent there are now taught not only to understand what is said to them, by lip-reading, but also to actually speak themselves. He said that approximately three-fourths of all deaf children in the state attend that school and the maintenance appropriation which it receives is only $242.00 per capita, compared to much higher sums in adjoining states and also in Georgia, to other institutions of the same general character.

Mr. Harris said if the appropriation was not made it would be unavoidably necessary to delay opening of the fall session at the school to December 1, instead of in September. A large delegation from Carroll county appeared in support of a bill asking an appropriation of $100,000 for the building of two new dormitories at the Bodewen State Normal school. Four or five spoke on behalf of this bill, but agreed that if the legislature could not appropriate the entire amount asked, they would be willing to accept one-half and build one dormitory instead of two. It was explained how this school is necessary to provide teachers for the rural schools in the western part of the state and how it is forced to turn away many applicants because it has no dormitories.

Dr. Brittain Appears.
Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, spoke on behalf of the bill, asking a deficiency appropriation for that institution. He stressed the value of Tech to the state and said that if the legislature let that institution sink below the first rank in such schools, it would administer a blow that it would take thirty years from which to recover.

Dr. Brittain told of the national fame of Georgia Tech and how her graduates are doing some of the greatest work in engineering today. He cited the Spring street viaduct and the new athletic stadium at Tech as local examples of the work of Tech men.

New Motor Bills.
Representative Bussey, of Crisp, introduced one measure requiring all sales of used automobiles to be registered with the sheriff of the county. This is designed to lessen the number of automobile thefts. Another bill, introduced by McGarity, of Paulding, would establish liens in favor of garages against automobiles on which repair work has been done, or against which there is a bill for storage. Still a third, by Parker, of Ware, would require all automobile fire manufacturers to stamp the date of manufacture on all tires offered for sale in the state.

Representative Barrett, of Stephens, introduced a bill which would permit the state highway board to use convict labor on the highways of the state, applying to the prison commission to furnish the convicts from those apportioned to counties which do not use them on road work.

Representative Elders, of Tattnall, is the author of a new bill requiring the state board of education to set aside one-half of all funds appropriated to the common schools, to be used as an equalization fund and applied to those rural counties so as to bring their schools up to the standard of the best schools in the state.

Representative Fowler, of Bibb, sponsored a bill to amend the constitution to allow counties to appropriate money for advertising their agricultural and industrial resources.

FAVORABLE ACTION BY COMMITTEES ON MANY BILLS
Recommendation for favorable passage in the house of representatives was unanimously voted on two measures Wednesday night, one for the establishment of a state printing plant, and the second calling for the maintaining as a branch of the University of Georgia the normal school now located at Statesboro.

Action was taken in separate meetings of the public printing and educational committees of the lower house, after lengthy discussion.

Bill No. 106, which provided among other provisions, the free publishing and distribution of school books to the children of the state, was introduced by Representative Beck, of Carroll county, and given first reading in the house.

Plan New School.
Bill No. 710, entitled "An act to establish, organize and maintain as a branch of the University of Georgia a normal school or teachers' college to be located at Statesboro, Ga., to be known as the Georgia Normal school," was drafted by Representative Brannen, of Bullock county, and was given first reading on July 2.

A bill abolishing counties from any financial cost of tick eradication and placing the entire burden on the state was favorably reported by the house committee on agriculture, No. 2, at a session held Wednesday morning before the house convened.

Another measure, introduced by Representative Linder, of Jeff Davis, would make all subordinate officials in the department of agriculture who are appointed by the commissioner and their term of office simultaneously with the head of the department. It is contended that this would prevent a defeated candidate from making new appointments for two-year terms just before his successful opponent assumes the office. This bill was also approved by the committee.

One Advance Report.
Adverse report was given to the bill by Representative Bowden, of McDuffie, to classify farm land for taxation purposes.

The measure sponsored by Representative Bleas, of Thomas county, providing for creation of a board of 15 members to appoint the commissioner of agriculture, instead of electing a commissioner every two years, was set for a special order of business for a committee meeting to be held at 8 o'clock Thursday morning.

COUZENS ENTERS RACE WITH RAP AT COOLIDGE

Detroit, Mich., July 9.—Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, announcing his candidacy for nomination at the September primaries to succeed himself, in a formal statement today refused to pledge his full support to President Coolidge or either state or national republican platform. He challenged the rights of party "bosses" to dictate his course of action and made his bid for the vote of Michigan electors on his past record for which, he said, he had no apologies to make.

Asked by the chairman of the republican state central committee to sign a statement pledging his support to the party platform and endorsing President Coolidge, Senator Couzens replied he could not do so.

"If complete adherence to the proposals and policies of President Coolidge is the test of republicanism, there are no republicans in the national congress," he said. "I do not believe it to be the desire of my constituents that I abjectly promise to follow some one and do his bidding."

"No candidate can endorse both the state platform and President Coolidge 100 per cent because they are in a measure inconsistent with each other."

"I believe in party government," he continued, "but so long as I am a member of the party I propose to have a voice in it and not be controlled by party bosses or leaders."

WARE TOBACCO CROPS THREATENED BY RAINS
Waycross, Ga., July 9.—(Special.) Dr. R. J. Heyde, Ware county agent, stated today that farmers are becoming alarmed over recent incessant rains. Tobacco growers, who have not yet cured their crop, are pessimistic over the prospect.

In the southern part of the county, further rains will be disastrous, they declare. Despite this, there is not the slightest doubt but that Ware county this season will produce the largest tobacco crop in its history.

Senile Dementia Advanced as Cause Of Double Killing

Michigan City, Ind., July 9.—Senile dementia is believed by the authorities to have caused Charles N. Wilcoxon, 68, former president of the Chicago, Lake Shore and South Bend Railway company, operating between Chicago and South Bend, Ind., to kill his wife, 70, with an ax, a razor and potato masher, and then hang himself at their Long Beach, Ind., home Monday night.

The bodies, fully clothed, were found last night by officers, who, summoned by neighbors, broke into the home. Mrs. Wilcoxon lay near a bed, her skull crushed and her throat cut. Her husband was hanging by a half-inch rope in a clothes closet, the head nearly severed by the rope. A blood-stained ax, potato masher and razor were found near the bodies.

The deaths, according to physicians who examined the bodies, occurred a few hours after the couple had narrowly escaped drowning in an automobile accident Monday.

An inquiry into Mr. Wilcoxon's financial condition will be made at the request to see if that may have been a motive. Recently he was forced to relinquish control of the railroad which he had built up by years of effort.

A daughter, Myra, who conducts a dancing academy in New York, survives.

STEEL UNION ASKING $10,000,000 DAMAGES
New York, July 9.—A counter suit for $10,000,000 has been brought by the Structural Steel Workers union from which members of the Iron league, an organization of employers, have asked $5,000,000 damages on the ground that a strike called last May in this city was illegal.

A court hearing yesterday on the league's petition for an injunction to force the steel workers to terminate the strike was featured by a series of charges and counter charges of conspiracy, coercion and intimidation and revealed that the union's suit had been filed.

Davis' Career Distinguished As Lawyer, Solon, Diplomat

Democratic Nominee First Came Into Prominence As Solicitor General in Wilson Administration.

New York, July 9.—John William Davis, the democratic nominee for president, was born in Clarksburg, W. Va., in 1873, the only son in a family of six children. His father, John J. Davis, also a native of Clarksburg, was an attorney and was constantly active in civic enterprises. He served in the legislature of the state and was twice elected to congress. Mrs. Anna Kennedy Davis, the mother of John W. Davis, was a native of Baltimore.

Mr. Davis was an alert student, being graduated from Washington and Lee university at the age of 19. After receiving his bachelor of arts degree, he spent three years studying law and won the law degree at the age of 22 in 1895. He was admitted to the bar the same year.

Taught One Year.
The following year he returned to the university to become professor of law. He taught one year, then began the practice of law in Clarksburg in partnership with his father.

When, in 1898, the democrats of his town sought to send him to the house of delegates, the lower house of the legislature, he declined the honor, preferring his professional practice and refused the nomination. He finally accepted, however, and was elected easily. He was made chairman of the judiciary committee of the house and later floor leader of his party.

After one term in the legislature, he returned to his law office and clung to his determination to eschew politics. Between 1899 and 1910, the only political office he held were those of county chairman, member of the state executive committee of his party in 1905, and delegate to the national conventions of 1904 and 1908.

When in 1910 the democrats of his district chose him for representative in congress, he was again reluctant to accept. A unanimous vote of the convention won him over, however, and he conducted a vigorous campaign and was elected in a district that had been republican for 20 years. He was re-elected in 1912.

Chairman of Committee.
In the national house, as in the legislature, Mr. Davis was made chairman of the judiciary committee. He took an active part in the impeachment and trial of Judge Robert W. Archbald.

As a result of his service on this committee, President Wilson selected him as solicitor general in 1913. Mr. Davis resigned from the house to accept that office.

In the summer of 1918, Mr. Davis went to Europe as a member of the commission of the American people to treat with Germany as to the exchange of prisoners of war. He was in Berlin on this mission when, upon the resignation of William H. Taft, President Wilson made Mr. Davis the American ambassador to Great Britain. Mr. Davis returned to this country for a conference with the president and took up his work in London in November, just as the war came to an end. In his capacity of ambassador, he was present in Versailles during the peace conference.

Presented at San Francisco.
Mr. Davis' name as a candidate for president was placed before the democratic national convention in San Francisco in 1920 by Governor John J. Cornwell, of West Virginia. He received a vote which placed him in the third round of balloting, but at that time was busy as ambassador in London.

Mr. Davis was married in 1896 to Miss Julia T. McDonald, of Jefferson county, West Virginia. After her death, he married Miss Ellen G. Bassel, daughter of John Bassel, a West Virginia attorney. He has one child, Mrs. William MacMillan Adams, who lived in Copenhagen. Three years ago Mr. Davis bought from A. C. Bedford, chairman of the National Standard Oil Company of New York, a country home near Locust Valley, Long Island, where he now lives. Mrs. Davis still casts his ballots in Clarksburg.

The democratic nominee is a member and vestryman of the Episcopal Church of St. John in Lexington, Va. He is a 32nd degree Mason and a member of the Metropolitan and University clubs in New York as well as the Chevy Chase, Lawyers' and National Press clubs in Washington. He was president of the West Virginia Bar association in 1904 and of the American Bar association in 1922. Mr. Davis was not an active candidate for the democratic nomination for president, either in 1920 or this year. His attitude was expressed on June 10 in a letter he wrote to the Davis-for-President Club of Chicago. In it he said:

Was Not Candidate.
"I am not a candidate for the nomination and any decision to the contrary must come from the party and not from myself."

"My only desire," he added, "is that the party shall choose the man best calculated to lead it to success, for I agree with you in thinking that the national situation imperatively demands the return of the democratic party to power. With the record of the last three years before them, it is inconceivable that the people should voice their approval of those now in power."

Mr. Davis, on returning to the United States in April, 1921, joined the law firm of Stetson, Jennings, Russell & Davis, the same firm in which Grover Cleveland had membership when he was nominated as the democratic candidate for the presidency in 1892.

Becomes Leader at Bar.
Because of his legal ability, he soon became one of the leaders of the New York bar and as such was retained as counsel by many large business concerns. These legal connections were pointed to often by some of those who opposed Mr. Davis in the democratic convention, notably by William Jennings Bryan.

Taking cognizance of the objections that were being raised in some quarters, Mr. Davis in a letter to a friend, made public about a month ago, voiced his theory of the propriety of such connections as related to public service.

"I conceive it," he said, "to be the duty of the lawyer, just as it is the duty of the priest or surgeon, to serve those who call on him, unless, indeed, there is some insuperable obstacle in the way. No one in this list of clients has ever controlled or fancied that he could control my personal or political conscience."

Defines Duty of Lawyer.
"It is vain enough to imagine that no one ever will. The only limitation upon a right-thinking lawyer's independence is that duty he owes to his clients, once selected, to serve them without the slightest thought of the effect such a service may have upon his own personal popularity or political fortunes."

"Any lawyer who surrenders this independence or shades his duty by trimming his professional course to fit the gusts of popular opinion, in my judgment, is no longer a lawyer, but a politician and a disgrace to the great profession to which he should be proud to belong. . . . I must stand by my philosophy. What is life worth, after all, if one has no philosophy of his own to live it by? If one surrenders this to win an office, what will he live by after the office is won? Tell me that."

Mr. Davis has made no plans for the future. He will probably outline his campaign plans at his summer residence, Locust Valley, New York, and will visit his friends in Clarksburg, West Virginia, before he starts on his trip abroad, where he was to attend an international meeting of lawyers in London.

Cancels European Trip.
Groups of leaders, representing every wing of the party, visited him during the afternoon and evening. Messages of congratulations from scores of men and women high in official circles of both major parties poured into the Polk home.

The telephone was ringing continuously. Practically all of the candidates in the long nomination contest assured Mr. Davis of support in the campaign. Governor Alfred E. Smith conveyed his regards through a personal friend, Senator Willard Saulsbury, of Delaware, who stayed in the room for nomination until well near the end, and said:

"Your nomination assures the continued usefulness of our historic party in preserving honest, popular, representative government in our country."

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the late war president, telegraphed her "heartiest congratulations to Mr. Davis and the party."

"Feel that in your hands the things that Mr. Wilson fought for have a worthy champion. Congratulations to Mr. Davis."

Vice President Discussed.
Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee; Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, and Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, were in conference with Mr. Davis after a cheering throng in front of the house departed. It is understood that a vice presidential nominee was discussed.

Among those who called or telegraphed congratulations were former Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston, former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, former Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, General Tasker H. Bliss, member of the American commission to negotiate peace in 1918; Governor Clifford M. Walker, of Georgia; Justice Pierce Butler, of the United States supreme court; Senator John R. Shields, of Tennessee; John Spargo, author and until 1917 one of the leaders of the socialist party.

DAVIS STAMPEDE WAS SHARP SLAP

finally disgusted the great majority of those pledged to him. When he released his delegates, therefore, without formally withdrawing his name, as did Senator Ralston, he was met with a sharp slap. He was quickly grasped the opportunity for the fresh air and his vote in the 100th ballot, quickly dropped to less than 200 "of the faithful" among which was "Georgia 28."

Then it was that he saw the end and quickly began to corral his hosts behind Meredith of Iowa. But it was too late.

There had been a time in the convention that McAdoo could have quashed his following, but that time had passed, and passed forever. The suggestion that McAdoo should leave the word "Meredith" killed the Iowa farm publisher, and while he gasped, the activities of William J. Bryan for him quickened the end.

How Georgia Voted.
On the 101st ballot this morning, Georgia broke the unit and ten of the delegates, representing one-half a vote each, swung to Davis. They were Andrew C. Erwin, Dr. Wood, Dr. Jeff Davis, P. A. Stovall, E. E. Lindsey, Mrs. Moore, Miss Collier, Miss Wright, Bert Lovett and Mr. Payne. The heads of the delegation remained immovable, Raleigh, Dean and Morris, the leaders, declaring "Davis impossible."

Finally when the final ballot saw Davis the winner and even California and Alabama swinging to him, Georgia refused to go the whole length but voted 27 for Davis and one for Meredith, the latter being the McAdoo legatee. That one vote was composed of a half vote each of Judge Morris and Mrs. Ralph Northcutt.

As the convention was assembling today, W. J. Bryan signified his intention to renew his fight to block the nomination of a candidate who cannot qualify under his definition of a "progressive" and "dry" candidate.

Bryan was busy in the hotel corridors making a determined effort to persuade state leaders against the candidacy of John W. Davis in particular. Released from further obligation to vote for McAdoo as a candidate, Bryan talked more freely of his own choice.

Bryan Hit Davis Again.
A free agent for the first time, Bryan outlined his plans and elaborated his position on candidates in an interview in which he again took a positive stand against Davis, of West Virginia, and Senator Glass, of Virginia, but endorsed the candidacies of several others including Robinson, of Arkansas; Meredith, of Iowa, and Senator Walsh, of Montana. He did not tie himself to any of these candidates to the exclusion of all others, but kept his preferences within this group.

"This is progressive and dry. I think the progressives could prevent any reactionary from getting the majority and the dries could prevent any wet getting a majority."

He followed this with a bitter denunciation of Davis and the interview was circulated in the convention hall during the 102d ballot. It only served to quicken and toadden the resentful delegates who had become weary of the McAdoo-Bryan whip and lash. They rebelled with a veritable barrage of votes for Davis, and while Bryan may perhaps regard it as an unsought honor, his attack on Davis in his speech attempting to stampee the convention for McAdoo and his subsequent attacks helped materially in intensifying the rebuke to him and the unanimous nomination of the West Virginian.

Taggart to Quit Arena.
Tom Taggart, of Indiana, sole survivor of the famous Murphy-Sullivan-Taggart triumvirate, is through with national politics.

Taggart gambled for the highest stakes of his long political career and lost. Now he wants no more of the game at which he was a past master.

In the three decades in which Taggart held undisputed sway in democratic politics in the Hoosier state, he has "made" many governors and senators, and a vice president. But he had never made a president. It was his greatest ambition.

That honor was to have gone to his life-long friend, Samuel M. Ralston, senator from Indiana. Since Ralston was elected to the senate two years ago, Taggart has nursed his Ralston presidential boom. Then just as he was prepared for a final drive to put over his candidate, a long distance telephone call came from Ralston. Ralston would not have the honor, Taggart argued and pleaded to no avail. The senator was adamant in his decision.

Taggart Crushed by Blow.
Crushed by the blow, Taggart reluctantly turned over to Chairman Walsh a telegram from Ralston, received shortly after the telephone message. After it had been read to the convention, a stunned and crestfallen Taggart, to whom politics has been as dear as life itself, turned his back on the convention and went back to his hotel and to bed.

"I'm not going to weep, but I feel like it," said Taggart as his friends gathered about him to extend their sympathies.

"It's all right, boys," he said. "I did the best I could to give the party a good candidate, who could have easily held Ralston before the national politics for the rest of my life."

What it cost Taggart to fight and lose cannot be measured. In order to keep Ralston in the race he held aloof from the factional quarrels and quietly held Ralston before the convention, waiting for the proper time to spring his boom.

Because he kept out of the fight over the Ku Klux Klan and declined Davis enough votes from the Indiana delegation to carry the platform plank denouncing the hooded order by name, Taggart incurred the resentment of George E. Brennan, democratic boss of Illinois, and other anti-McAdoo leaders.

The real party leaders are jubilant tonight, and though the democracy of the nation has suffered much during this past week there is every indication that harmony, loyalty and solidarity will quickly prevail, and that the national ticket for 1924 will stand on a more excellent chance for a November victory.

that they should bear to the people, the state of New York leads the country.

At length the governor detailed some of the reforms and forward movements which he had undertaken in the state under the leadership of his party.

"I want to make a passing reference to my own situation as the national ticket for the presidency is concerned. If I were to tell anybody here that I am disappointed, it would not be true, because I am not. I have gotten further in the public life of the country and the state than I ever expected to get. I have no rancor or ill will in my heart—nothing but gratitude."

"I did nothing about this nomination; there was nothing I could do about it. I choose the course of giving 100 per cent service to the people of this state instead of looking toward the big dome of the capitol at Washington, and that's the reason why the republican party in this state is broken and leaderless."

Party Not Damaged.
"While the convention ran for more than a week, there was a great deal of talk about the damage to the party because of the length of time it took to select a candidate. Don't pay any attention to that. Anything that comes up from the masses of the people always takes time; if it comes any other way it's not genuine."

"You have made a wonderful nomination. If the United States was a great business institution and it belonged to me and needed a man of great brains and capacity, I would be willing to give it to the hands John W. Davis. I wouldn't ask for a better executor of my last will and testament."

"So far as the state of New York is concerned, take this pledge from me: I am the leader of the democracy in this state, and the very minute this convention is finished, I'll take off my coat and vest, and so will everybody else who follows me in this state, and what we can to improve conditions in the United States by the election of the ticket that is going to come from this convention."

by certain older standards of personal dignity and taste, who against the persuasions of their friends steadily refrained from so much as bending a finger to cause the current of events in the convention to turn their way. In comparison with some of the candidates who had immense elaborate organizations, with many paid employees, the only thing that was more sophisticated than a country-town lawyer.

He looked curiously out of place among the very experienced, very sophisticated managers of other candidates, who were rushing and dashing about the place. All Shaver had what he called "The Clarksburg, West Virginia, Home Town Club."

Davis Well Known.
Of course there were many persons of considerable weight who favored Davis because of the familiarity they had come to have with his personal powers. But all of these were restrained and held aloof, as with a kind of sensitive dignity, from the excited pushing, shoving, wire pulling and trading that was being done in behalf of other candidates.

The thing the democrats most need now is to persuade the newspapers and other leaders of the west from bringing up absurdly hasty judgment on Davis, with no more to go on than the mere phrase that he has been "Morgan's lawyer." Bryan said that while he regarded Davis as the finest kind of man personally, his opposition to the nomination of Davis was based on his fear that Davis might not run well as against La Follette west of the Mississippi. That may be or may not be. We shall not know until November.

Two days ago Debs presided over the socialist national convention. The writer makes the guess that if Eugene Debs were asked to express his opinion, he would speak of him in terms of generous favor. Debs has had reason to have favorable knowledge of Davis' mind, and Debs is a man of such intellectual integrity that he would never refrain from a commendation that he felt was due.

The same is probably true of Wayne Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon League. Wheeler, if asked, will undoubtedly say that he has complete confidence in Davis in the field of prohibition enforcement. All this should weigh during the period of hasty temptation to think and write and speak of Mr. Davis in terms of mere conventional labels and phrases about conservative or progressive, wet or dry.

Has Fine Courage.
As a contribution toward forestalling too early an estimate of Davis' relations to economic and social questions, the following lines are reprinted from an article printed in this paper, by the present writer, on April 13:

"Davis is essentially liberal, and a courageous liberal. On the occasion of a strike in the West Virginia coal mines, Davis acted as counsel for Mother Jones and Eugene Debs when they were charged with sedition and inciting to riot, an action on his part which called for a good deal of courage, considering the place and the time. Several years ago when Davis was a member of congress he acted as chairman of the democratic state convention in West Virginia, which put the first woman suffrage plank in the platform of that state. This, too, was an act of intellectual freedom that called for courage at that time and in that place."

"One of the clients Davis has had during the last three years is a labor union, the National Window Glass Workers, which he defended successfully in the supreme court against an effort of the government to condemn a contract made between the window glass workers and the window glass manufacturers as being a combination in restraint of trade."

Liked His Attitude.
"Probably the reason this labor union came to Mr. Davis to represent it in this case lay in the recollection of all labor unions that Mr. Davis as

Walsh Sends Delegates Out

Recesses Convention To Dodge Honor For Himself

To Eat and Foils Stampede

BY RALPH H. TURNER.

New York, July 9.—The democratic vice-presidential nomination was literally hurled at Senator Thomas J. Walsh as the democratic national convention concluded its choice of a man for president and sought eagerly to end the whole business by completing the ticket.

With an abrupt rap of his gavel, and a shout that the convention was adjourned, the famous oil investigator dodged the rift and dismissed a horde of delegates who were demanding overwhelmingly that he be the running mate of John W. Davis. Never has a man had a national political gift so closely within his reach and by his own act declined the honor.

Walsh's refusal to permit the convention to stampede in its direction was typical of the steady, dignified manner in which he had directed the convention and which characterized his every move. When the demonstration over Davis had quieted down, a new cry arose that Walsh immediately be nominated for the vice presidency. In all parts of the floor delegates, most of them standing on chairs, began shouting "Walsh for vice president!" "Nominate Walsh!"

The contagion spread. Sentiment for Walsh, as expressed vocally, was overwhelming. He had created an enviable record in exposing the oil scandals, delegates argued; he had made an admirable chairman, he was a progressive westerner, his nomination would complete an ideal ticket.

The recipient of all these plaudits retained his composure, but sought vainly to restore order. At the height of the din, State Senator Igoe, of Illinois, one of Brennan's aides, shouted: "I wish to nominate Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, for the vice presidency." Igoe's speech, if he had intended making one, got no further.

Walsh struck his gavel with a crash on the sounding board. Quieting for a moment the tumult in his behalf, he told the convention: "I am sure it is the part of wisdom not to act on the impulse of the moment on this important question. I am deeply sensitive of the honor done me. I beg to assure you I have given careful consideration to the question and I am sure we ought to adjourn."

But still another move on his part was necessary to escape leaving the hall in the role of vice presidential candidate.

A motion to adjourn was before the convention. Walsh called for a vote. The noise seemed to have it, but Walsh, apparently determined to end a stampede toward him, decreed the convention had adjourned until evening.

He had maneuvered the convention out of naming him on the democratic ticket.

In a statement after the adjournment, Walsh said he thought his nomination would be had not only for his personal reasons, but for the party. He could be of more value to the party, he said, by continuing his work in the senate.

photographers. The reporters immediately surrounded him and Mr. Davis said, smiling, "Charge, Chester, charge." He called to Mr. Polk, who was standing inside the doorway, inviting him to pose with him. "Come on, Frank," said Mr. Davis, "you've had a hand in this."

The nominee appeared vigorous and in robust health.

Mr. Davis had booked passage on the liner Berengaria to sail Saturday for Southampton. He had planned to go with Secretary Hughes and other members of the American Bar association to attend the international bar meeting, which will begin in London July 21.

tion, and an even more conscious of the weighty obligations that have fallen to me by its deliberate and unanimous choice. Not least of these is the duty to guide the country, as clearly as my powers permit the democratic creed and the democratic policy as the convention has declared them.

Hopes to Rally Liberals.
"That this creed and this policy will receive the militant support of all those who call themselves by the democratic name, I do not doubt for an instant. I shall hope to rally to their aid that great body of liberal, progressive and independent thought which believes that progress is action, government is action, which detects privilege in whatever form, and which does not wish the American people or their government to stand still or retreat from the midst of a changing world."

"There can be no compromise with reaction. Liberal principles must and will prevail. This is the mandate of the hour and I shall obey it."

ALDERMEN ALLEGED TO HAVE SHARED IN STOLEN LIQUOR
Chicago, July 9.—Reports that certain city aldermen received liquor, which was part of the whisky valued at $1,000,000 reported stolen from the Sibley warehouse, are said to be under investigation by federal agents.

A man who is said to have made a confession that he helped sell the "stolen" liquor is said to have named several aldermen as among his customers.

Democracy's Day!

The nomination of John W. Davis, of West Virginia, as the democratic candidate for president was the redeeming climax of a convention unprecedented in the history of American politics for discord, tumult and bitterness.

But from the recoil of conflicting ambitions, unsatisfied, and out of the resulting chaos, has been born the inspiration which resulted in the unanimous choice of a standard bearer to whom all genuine democrats may look with unflinching confidence for that courageous leadership which compels victory.

His personal, professional and political record place him immeasurably above the type of time-serving demagogues who have no goal but gain, no creed but greed, no doctrine but expediency.

His public service in congress, as solicitor general of the United States and as ambassador to England, has stamped his entire official record with that seal of statesmanship which has become so rare in modern government as to be commonly regarded as the mere mask under which the office-seeking politician camouflages his pretensions.

His path in the profession of law has been followed with such marked ability and upon such ethical principles as to attract a profitable practice and place him at the head of the American Bar association.

The conscience and character of the man and lawyer could not be better illustrated than by his own response to the recent suggestion of a partial friend that he renounce his professional representation of some of his clients in order to insure his nomination by the democratic convention.

To this suggestion of expediency the response was prompt and spontaneous: "What is life worth, after all, if one has no philosophy of his own to live by? I cannot and will not trim my professional course to fit the gusts of popular opinion."

Never in his life has he sacrificed a friend or deserted a client. His employment has been in the open and never in his professional career has it been necessary for him to justify a fee or to explain an employment for legal advice.

He is a great, big, broad-minded American citizen who stands with both feet on the constitution of his country.

There is not to be found anywhere in America a truer type of all that is best in American citizenship than he is.

He is a man that any sane citizen, man or woman, can follow with the pride of exalted leadership and with the satisfaction of knowing that he will never lead his followers into the devious paths so often sought by petty politicians and mere "vote-getters."

He is the one man of all others in America whose nomination was most dreaded by the republicans, whose party now appears to be hopelessly split, with the independent candidacy of La Follette contributing immeasurably to the prospect of democratic success, if democrats, forgetting past differences, will but do their duty.

The action of the convention has turned gloom into hope, revivifying the brilliant pre-convention prospects of the party, whose flag is now in the hands of a leader of spotless reputation, and whose best tribute is the concession even by the republican opposition that he is a man eminently worthy of the presidency and whose personal character and reputation is such as to guarantee that, if elected, his administration of the office will reflect the best there is in American tradition.

The convention has by this nomination furnished the antidote for all the poison brewed in its deliberations and produced the only anti-septic which could heal the skirmish scars so liberally scattered during its protracted deliberations.

THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM.

The advent of motor transportation and the resulting congestion of traffic on the public highways and the streets of the cities has presented a serious problem of national magnitude.

Like any other great and radical change which could not be foreseen and for which adequate preparations could not be made, a state of confusion and entanglement has resulted with its accompanying price in fatalities. But serious as this problem appears, it is not beyond solution, and the fact that it is engaging the earnest consideration of the best engineering thought of the country is encouraging.

The difficulties of motor traffic now are said to closely resemble those with which the railroads had to contend 50 years ago when the volume of business outgrew the capacity of the old single-track lines and the terminals were jammed with freight which could not be moved. Civil engineers of that day devised double tracks—the forerunners of the modern switch yard—and they constructed parallel lines between the large centers of population.

This seems to point the way to the solution of auto traffic problems. Just as the greatest jam of railroad freight traffic occurred at terminal points so the greatest congestion of traffic is now on the city streets and it is clear that it must be spread over a wider area if the situation is to be relieved. Any highway or street, no matter how well paved, can carry only a certain volume of traffic. This can be accelerated somewhat by police supervision, but the effective remedy must be found in keeping the through traffic off the principal streets, by short cuts such as have been provided by the Spring street viaduct in Atlanta and by such other means of rerouting the traffic as will reserve the city space for local use. At Peekskill, N. Y., and Tampa, Fla., bridges have been constructed which will enable through traffic to move swiftly on its way without meeting the congestion of New York city streets on one hand or the wide detour around Tampa Bay on the other.

Short cuts, rerouting, one-way streets, spreading of the traffic to outlying and little used thoroughfares—herein seems to lie the solution of traffic problem.

WHAT WE EAT.

Americans stand at the head of the list among the meat-eaters of the world, according to statistics recently collected. The average American eats 150 pounds of meat per year as against the average Italian, who stands at the bottom of the list and consumes only 24 pounds of flesh during the same period.

In the consumption of Irish potatoes America stands second, using 200 pounds for each inhabitant. The Irish lead the world in the consumption of potatoes, four pounds per day for each person being the required ration.

In the consumption of wheat, France leads all other nations, 467 pounds a year being the amount eaten by each inhabitant. The United States ranks next to France in its consumption of wheat and also adds a number of other kinds of bread—bread made of rye, bran, corn and other products. In the consumption of bread, as with meat, Americans are said to lead the rest of the world.

The American is not a heavy eater of rice, consuming only four pounds a year as against 550 pounds eaten by the average native of the Province of Bombay, India, where rice seems to constitute the main article of food. The average American eats 450 eggs a year and in this particular he leads the rest of mankind. Americans are also heavy drinkers of coffee, milk, tea and soda fountain products.

"What do you mean," demanded the irate subscriber to the Cobbtown Weekly, "by sending me a dun for subscription when you have been written for the last nine years about a free press?"

"Is an elevator a parlor or a public conveyance?" asks an English writer. Well, sometimes it looks like a warehouse.

A Mother's Memory.

You ask me if I Remember dear,
My answer, dear,
Is No;
Her fragile heart
May cease to beat,
Her lips may lose their glow
And when she loved ones all have kissed
Her brow that saddened day,
With tears within their eyes, have left her mortal heart away
And placed the fragrant wreaths above
With tender hands and loving
And left her in her Maker's care
Beneath the summer skies,
You only leave the image there.
The wreaths and words and smiles
For when you turn to homeward go
Your mother in your heart.

II.

Weep not for her, her dear heart rests.
The heart that knew each care,
The heart that kept a vigil at
Your door when deep despair
Almost had claimed you for its own
And bowed you down in grief
Her heart that soothed your weary brow
When life hung like a leaf;
Who clung to you through thick and thin.

III.

She is with you, though Love may say
She lies at last asleep;
She walks with you and follows you,
Her constant vigil keep
You feel within the path that she Would have you tread each day;
Her lips, through dreams, speak out to you
And guide you not astray.
She lives within your heart each day
And helps you live aright.
Her prayers for you are with her God
Each minute, day and night.
Weep not for her, she guides you still,
Her heart keeps 'er the Shepherd's watch.

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A NEW JOB EVERY DAY.

"Just look at Brown over there—he's been doing the same job for 43 years, and here I am getting tired of mine in 43 hours!"

"He hasn't done the same job for 43 years," replied the one listening to the above remark; "he has had a new job every day."

And that, my friend, is the only way to true success and lasting greatness.

Don't go back to your desk tomorrow or today with the feeling that you are doing the same old thing. Remember that each day is new, distinct and different from the day before. Do it by itself. It will never come again.
But his is a foreign-made machine and would never be presented to you again.

Go to your new job every day!
This will make you grow. This will give you inspiration and incentive and keep your interest warm.
And every time you tackle the new job determine to do it better than the one before.

This will make every effort interesting and worth while, and every day will find you happy at its close, no matter how tired your body may be, or how discouraged in spirit.

Each day outgrow your shell. Be bigger with the passing of every day.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

He will point to Tolstoy, Nietzsche, Schopenhauer, Musset, Verlaine, Ma-gnien, Beethoven and infinitum. My own experience has been different. Sleep comes easily and there are never in-sonorous moments except twice a year when I awaken with a scream.
It is always the same nightmare. I am walking up Second street in Gallipoli, Ohio. It is Easter Sunday and I am the motif of a sartorial drama. But I glance into drawn curtained window of Harry Frank's Clothing store and discover I have neglected my trousers and underneath. Across in the park are the members of the Ladies' guild holding a basket picnic.

I know a man also who coaxes sleep by counting sheep hurdling a censor, he achieves a desire and invariably as the last sheep goes over he decides to follow and trips —and lands kerplump out of bed on the floor.

Two of my friends have the gift of sleep in a remarkable manner.
They are Joseph A. Moore, financial manager for W. R. Hearst, and Will Hogz, the Texas oil man. Each is a big executive and works at top speed, but at any time they feel so slept they can bury themselves in sleep for 10 to 15 minutes and awaken refreshed.

Incidentally I long to read the account of the electrocution that does not contain "the prisoner slept well and ate a hearty breakfast." This may be true but I doubt it. If I were going to the electric chair—
I would spend the last hours trying to get the knooks out of my knees for the final march. Fright invariably gives my knees a gelatine effect.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

"Fierce Mountains Love You."

John Lancaster, old-time prospector and soughdough, has hit the trail again. Word comes from the San Rafael mountains, in California, that he is even now picking his way over the hills looking for the mother lode that he ran across 25 years ago.
Scalped, scalped, he has sworn that he will pick up the mother lode he died. Modern comforts could not hold him. The desert and the trail called and he had to go. Last week he fitted out a horse and set out on the trek. John Lancaster, the prospector, is a distinctive American type. Hard as nails, "straight-lipped," but loyal, generous, frank and man of his word. His type can be found wherever great prospects of pioneering are to be undertaken, when mountains are to be scaled, when the price is to be paid in "holly-pinch," when the outpost of civilization are to be staked forward.
His type blazes the trail and hews
the path. Then follow the others, the "water-holes" they follow the
by the "water-holes" they follow the by the ashes of their campfires. But Lancaster and his type were the forerunners, as the Boers say, "the princes of pioneers."

"America Hopeless," Says Muscovite.

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood, power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-boils. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schiff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The larger size is more economical.

BARRACKS STILL HELD BY REBEL FORCES.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Sao Paulo rebels were still holding their positions in the Luz barracks this morning, according to advices from Rio Janeiro quoting an official account of the situation. This account added that the rebels would be unable to hold out much longer, owing to desertions and exhaustion and the fact that they are surrounded and without possibility of receiving reinforcements.

REPORT OF CAPTURE DECLARED PREMATURE.

Buenos Aires, July 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—Latest advices from Rio Janeiro indicated that the previous announcement of the capture by government forces of the rebel positions in Sao Paulo was premature. The positions now are being bombarded by heavy artillery, with airplanes cooperating, it is stated, and the official word is that all is ready for the final assault. The uprising has already cost several hundred lives and much property damage. After the loyal troops within the city had been defeated the arrival of government reinforcements forced the rebels to take up defensive positions in the Luz barracks and the adjoining railway station, and it is these places which are under bombardment. Previous advices were to the effect that they had been taken by assault.

A battle between rebel forces and six hundred marines and soldiers transported to Santos by the battleship Nina Geraes, occurred Sunday at Sao Bernardo, near Paulo.

According to unofficial accounts the federal losses in this fighting were heavy, totalling 250 dead and 200 wounded.

Despite this resistance some of the marines apparently succeeded in reaching Sao Paulo, as their presence is mentioned in official accounts of the fighting there. The number of casualties in Sao Paulo is not known.

Although the rebels dominated the city for three days, they were unable to capture Carlos de Campo, governor of Sao Paulo state, who with loyal troops withstood a siege within the government palace until relief arrived.

REBEL MOVEMENT SPIRALS TO BOLIVIA.

Buenos Aires, July 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—An insurrection has broken out in Santa Cruz de la Sierra in the Bolivian department of that name, which borders on Brazil, and the town has been taken by the rebels, according to a semi-official statement published at La Paz, Bolivia, and forwarded by La Nacion's correspondent.

The movement is headed by leaders of the liberal party, aided by foreign free lancers. The revolutionists surprised the small garrison in Santa Cruz de la Sierra and made prisoner the prefect, Colonel Angel Rodriguez. The other local authorities fled.

The statement, which condemns the movement in strong terms, says that the rebels raised the separatist banner in the hope that the province would join Brazil. The government, it declares, has sent sufficient forces to that district to put down the revolt. The remainder of the country is quiet.

FINAL SERVICES FOR MRS. ALMAND HELD IN CONYERS

Final tribute will be paid Mrs. Henry P. Almand, who died Tuesday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Vanille Dabney, 56 West Boulevard drive, Kirkwood, in funeral services to be held at 11 o'clock this morning from the Conyers Baptist church. Rev. A. J. Gross will officiate. Interment will be in Conyers cemetery, with A. S. Turner in charge.

Mrs. Almand, who was 88 years old, was born near Lithonia, Ga., and later moved to Conyers, where she resided until the death of her son a year ago, when she moved to Atlanta. Her husband was a prominent merchant of Conyers for 30 years. Mrs. Almand was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and of the Baptist church.

In addition to her daughter, she is survived by a step-daughter, Mrs. S. A. Dabney, also of Atlanta.

TRUCE DECLARED BY DEPARTMENTS PENDING REPORT

Temporary cessation of blasting on the Rosalia street rock quarry has resulted in a truce between the school department which it was stated at city hall, will continue until the city's board of consulting engineers reports definitely whether the blasting is likely to injure the new girls' high school, being built over the same rock strata as is used for the city quarry.

If consulting engineers report that blasting will not injure the school, the quarry will be reopened with convict labor from the city stockade. If injury is a possible result, the quarry will be abandoned.

Members of the street committee said Wednesday that abandonment of the quarry would interfere seriously with street repair work throughout the city, as the city has insufficient money to buy all the rock needed for repairs and has no other quarry capable of supplying the amount of rock customarily taken out of the Rosalia street deposit.

MISTAH SPEAKAH

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Mistah Speakah—
Privileged resolution—

Whereas, it is a self-evident fact that some members of the assembly have had much more experience than others in the art of public speaking—

Whereas, it is, to say the least, not to a man's discredit if he has refrained from speech-making whenever possible—

Therefore, be it resolved, that every member be required to specify what his regular occupation is and a system of handicaps be imposed on those whose avocation requires forensic ability, exercise and development.

Thus, adopting the above resolution, a handicap of ten votes might be suggested as fair for all lawyers, as compared to retail merchants.

A farmer would be handicapped five votes. For he is trained to a certain extent vocally, by conversing with the mules ahead of the plow. (Unkind thought—he may be trained the same way legislatively.)

This would be hard on Representative Knight, of Berrien, who admits that he both preaches and practices law.

But, in all seriousness, Mr. Knight is hereby handed a very sincere compliment for the speech he made Wednesday morning on the Athens trip proposal. Though his side lost on the vote, his was truly a genuine oratorical treat.

It was noted, by the way, that if the time spent in the house yesterday arguing against the trip to Athens, on the ground that it would be spending the state's time improperly, had been spent on the train, the whole legislature could have made the trip to Athens and part way back again.

Fearing that more time may be wasted—

Mistah Speakah—
More we adjourn—
Call for the ayes and nays—
Clearly one-fifth not having voted, the motion is lost.

This house stands adjourned until tomorrow, same place, same time.

Plans are under way for the great Labor day celebration in the history of Atlanta, according to announcement Wednesday night at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

President C. W. Cunningham, who is at the head of the general Labor day committee, announced that generous donations have been made toward the expenses of the annual labor holiday, which is to be celebrated the first Monday in September. He also stated that reports made by delegates who attended a special meeting of the general Labor day committee, held last Sunday afternoon, indicated a most enthusiastic cooperation on the part of practically all unions affiliated with the central body.

"Enthusiasm evidenced in the coming celebration by members of the Labor day committee last Sunday," said Mr. Cunningham, "and the financial support that has been given by city and county authorities, practically assure the success of the holiday." A meeting will be held next Sunday afternoon at the Labor Temple, when detailed plans will be worked out for the afternoon entertainment at Lakewood park, and subcommittees formed for the event.

During the brief session Wednesday night it was brought to the attention of the delegates that the paving of Trinity avenue had been approved by city council, and Emmett L. Quinn, delegate from the Machineists' local, proposed that further steps be taken to secure white light posts for the thoroughfare on which the Atlanta Labor Temple is located.

The session was brief and only routine matters were considered.

NATIONAL INDEPENDENT TICKET IS NOMINATED

Indianapolis, Ind., July 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—John Zahnd, of Indianapolis, was nominated for president of the United States on the national independent ticket here tonight and Roy M. Harrop, of Omaha, was chosen as the vice presidential nominee.

HARROP ADVOCATED FORD FOR PRESIDENT.

Omaha, Neb., July 9.—Roy M. Harrop, nominated by the independent party for vice president, is a mining engineer, having received his training at the South Dakota School of Mines. He was born in Lincoln, Neb., 41 years ago.

Prior to Henry Ford's announcement that he was for President Coolidge, Harrop was an advocate of the Detroit manufacturer for president. In January of this year, he helped form what was named "The People's Progressive Party," which adopted a platform containing a plank for repeal of the federal reserve bank act.

LAST SERVICE HELD FOR MRS. J. T. BOLTON

Americus, Ga., July 9.—(Special.) A number of American citizens today Bolton, 50, at Leslie. Services were conducted by Rev. H. J. Johnston. Interment was at Leslie cemetery.

Mrs. Bolton was a prominent resident of this community. She died Monday night following a brief illness.

She is survived by her husband, a merchant at Leslie; two sons, J. D. Bolton and Ernest Bolton, of Leslie; four daughters, Mrs. Stanley Burnett, of Augusta; Miss Edna Bolton, of Leslie; Miss Ruth Bolton, of Leslie; and Miss Annie Bolton, all of Leslie; her father, J. W. Jordan, of Dothan, Ala.; two sisters, Mrs. Elam Mauk, of Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. Sam Dixon, of Fitzgerald; three brothers, Howard Jordan, of Jacksonville; Homer Jordan, of Bakersfield, Calif.; and Walter Jordan, of Cobb.

John R. Stacey, a Marblehead lobster man, has done something that few other men have been able to accomplish. He has won the confidence of a wild sea gull so that the bird will accompany him on his trips to inspect his traps and will even eat raw fish from his hands. This particular gull is jealous, too, as he drives away any other gull that seems inclined to make friends with Mr. Stacey.

Evening Gown Has Train That Trails in Front

Scientist denies successful plan to trap weevils.

Tallahassee, Fla., July 9.—Reports that scientists at the federal department of agriculture experimental station here had developed a method whereby the cotton boll weevil could be trapped and eradicated were denied tonight by Dr. B. R. Coad, entomologist in charge. Dr. Coad stated that an effort to develop a chemical lure for use in traps of poison, which has been in progress several years and to which publicity has been given from time to time, still was being pursued, but that so far the object sought had not been attained.

The station for several years has been the center of federal investigation of methods to combat the weevil, and it has to its credit development of the new well-known practice of dusting crops with poison released from airplanes flying over fields and orchards.

Plans are being made for the movement of other troops from Macon and this vicinity. Three special trains will be operated for this purpose, two leaving Macon Sunday night and one leaving Empire Sunday morning.

About 200 troops from Hawkinsville and Dublin will meet at Empire; 100 troops from Macon and 80 from Barnesville will be consolidated here Sunday night for the trip to Brunswick. The annual encampment of the guardsmen will be formally opened next Monday.

BY MME. LISBETH.

Metal brocade in bronze and green is very effective in a simple evening gown that relies for its distinction on a draping of the material in front of the skirt. Said material is gathered to the center front and from the shirring that holds the gathers in place hangs a train that looks as if it might very easily trip the wearer up if she attempted to walk in it.

It recalls Kipling's famous lines to the bangle, "Brother, your tail hangs down behind." Only in this case it is "Sister, your train hangs down in front."

This train, however, instead of proving a stumbling block for its wearer is neatly caught up on the wrist, thus achieving two triumphs—that of a graceful and unusual draping effect and proving the many times repeated fact that trimming effects are all of the front—that is all except the exceptions, which, after all, only prove the rule.

All the news from the "front" so to speak, that is Paris and New York, continues to emphasize the fact that the fashions of the day—from sports to evening things—favor the slender woman. This frock, however, is a word of hope for the chubby lady. Its lines are long and straight and even the draping is put on with due restraint. It should prove a very good model for the woman inclined to embonpoint.

Don't Get on the Sucker List.

Increased cost of living has had a surprising effect on the incomes of widows and orphans. It appears that the need of money is the very thing that sooner or later reduces them to less money or even to poverty.

We'll suppose that a widow was left with ill-gotten, long-time securities that net her an income of $3,000 a year. For an economical person this might have been enough to keep a little family together in a comfortable home a few years ago. But with the increase in rents, groceries, clothing and everything else, a person who once lived well enough on $3,000 has had to face a serious situation.

A woman who feels that she must have more than her $3,000 income and has no earning power save but one chance to reinvent her funds in securities that will give her a larger yield. Once she starts this her name is enrolled on a score of sucker lists and she is soon well on the way to losing her entire legacy.—Fred Kelly, in the Nation's Business.

Sally League

Augusta, Ga., July 9.—Augusta went down to defeat today, 3 to 4 and 5 to 6, in the second game of the Sally League. The Spartans won the first game 5 to 6 and the second 3 to 4.

In the first game the Tigers did not have a chance with Brewer pitching, while the Spartans hit Johnson hard with men on base. In the second game the locals held a one-run lead until the seventh when the Spartans staged a rally which netted them two runs. Brooks walked two hits in this inning. With two out and a runner on third, Callahan went in to hit for Clayton. He ended the game by going out to center. The loss of today's game enabled the Spartans to climb within nine points of the Tigers.

Augusta, Ga., July 9.—(Special.) The service company of the 122nd regiment, Georgia National Guard, will leave tomorrow night for Brunswick, where it will take part in the exercises opening the Brunswick-St. Simon highway.

Plans are being made for the movement of other troops from Macon and this vicinity. Three special trains will be operated for this purpose, two leaving Macon Sunday night and one leaving Empire Sunday morning.

About 200 troops from Hawkinsville and Dublin will meet at Empire; 100 troops from Macon and 80 from Barnesville will be consolidated here Sunday night for the trip to Brunswick. The annual encampment of the guardsmen will be formally opened next Monday.

BY MME. LISBETH.

Metal brocade in bronze and green is very effective in a simple evening gown that relies for its distinction on a draping of the material in front of the skirt. Said material is gathered to the center front and from the shirring that holds the gathers in place hangs a train that looks as if it might very easily trip the wearer up if she attempted to walk in it.

It recalls Kipling's famous lines to the bangle, "Brother, your tail hangs down behind." Only in this case it is "Sister, your train hangs down in front."

This train, however, instead of proving a stumbling block for its wearer is neatly caught up on the wrist, thus achieving two triumphs—that of a graceful and unusual draping effect and proving the many times repeated fact that trimming effects are all of the front—that is all except the exceptions, which, after all, only prove the rule.

All the news from the "front" so to speak, that is Paris and New York, continues to emphasize the fact that the fashions of the day—from sports to evening things—favor the slender woman. This frock, however, is a word of hope for the chubby lady. Its lines are long and straight and even the draping is put on with due restraint. It should prove a very good model for the woman inclined to embonpoint.

Don't Get on the Sucker List.

Increased cost of living has had a surprising effect on the incomes of widows and orphans. It appears that the need of money is the very thing that sooner or later reduces them to less money or even to poverty.

We'll suppose that a widow was left with ill-gotten, long-time securities that net her an income of $3,000 a year. For an economical person this might have been enough to keep a little family together in a comfortable home a few years ago. But with the increase in rents, groceries, clothing and everything else, a person who once lived well enough on $3,000 has had to face a serious situation.

A woman who feels that she must have more than her $3,000 income and has no earning power save but one chance to reinvent her funds in securities that will give her a larger yield. Once she starts this her name is enrolled on a score of sucker lists and she is soon well on the way to losing her entire legacy.—Fred Kelly, in the Nation's Business.

THE RULES OF GOLF.

WRONG INFORMATION.

Knowledge of the number of strokes that his opponent has played is frequently of importance to a player in deciding on just what policy he will adopt in playing a stroke.

And the rules forbid him the right to know at any time. In other words, he is entitled to ask the opponent, and the latter is obligated to give the information under the penalty of loss of the hole if he fails to do so.

If a player's caddy gives the opponent wrong information, or if he fails to correct the mistake before the player plays another stroke, in such case the penalty for misinforming the opponent is loss of the hole. In medal play it is disqualification.

EXPLANATIONS.

Before deciding to try to carry a distant hazard a player asks his opponent, who has played over the hazard, how many strokes he has played. The opponent answers, but after the player has played, he says he was mistaken and that he has really had one stroke more than he reported. What is the rule?

Miss Jones Weds Dan C. Lyle, Jr., At Lovely Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Annie Belle Jones and Dan Connolly Lyle, Jr., was an event of social prominence and took place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Albitus Judson Jones, in College Park.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. L. E. Roberts, pastor of the College Park Baptist church, and was witnessed by immediate relatives and a small group of close friends. Preceding the marriage service, a program of music was featured. Nicholas S. Jones, of Spartanburg, S. C., brother of the bride, sang "Because I Love You, Dear," and Miss Christine Trimble sang "I Love You Truly" as a vocal number.

The altar was effectively arranged in the living room, stately palms forming the background and pedestals holding pink gladioli and feverfew. White altar candles were placed in cathedral candlesticks, and Misses Ann Rainey and Jane Hobbs, nieces of the bride, entered the living room together and lighted the candles just before the entrance of the bridal party.

The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. C. O. Hobbs, of Spartanburg, S. C., sister of the bride.

Bridal Party.

The bridal party descended the amplex covered stairway at 8 o'clock. Miss Annie Jones, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and she was gowned in peach-colored Georgette crepe, richly embroidered in crystal beads, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Bruce Lyle, the young brother of the groom, wore a white flannel suit, and acted as ring bearer, carrying the platinum wedding ring in the heart of a rose. Little Misses Douglas Lyle and Jeannette Rainey, Camilla, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. They wore handsome frocks of pink crepe de chine, and carried Dresden baskets filled with pink rosebuds.

Beautiful Bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Nicholas S. Jones, of Spartanburg, S. C. She was radiantly lovely in her bridal robes of white Georgette crepe, veiling white chiffon and satin, and banded in satin. She wore a veil of real lace, which was fastened to her golden hair with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of valley lilies and bride's rose tied with tiny ribbons and tulle.

Informal Reception.

An informal reception followed the ceremony and the rooms were elaborately decorated in pink gladioli, feverfew and palms. In the dining room, the lace covered table was adorned with a silver basket filled with pink gladioli. Encircling the centerpiece were silver candlesticks holding white unshaded tapers, and silver compotes were filled with pink mints and bon bons.

Punch was served from bowls arranged on artistically decorated tables placed in the sun room. The members of the Hope Chest club, composed of a charming group of the society set of College Park, of which the bride is a member, presided at the punch bowls, and included Mrs. Alfred Drake, Mrs. William Hatchell, Mrs. Paul Solomon, Mrs. Glen Bryant, Mrs. George Newton, Mrs. Clarence Wall, Mrs. James Hicks, Miss Eloise Olds, Miss Eleanor Harrison, Miss Emma Proctor, Miss Mary Thornton, and Miss Blanche Roberts.

Mrs. C. D. Hobbs was gowned in coral Georgette crepe, and her flowers were white rosebuds.

Acquiring Health Is Dr. Loveridge's Lecture Subject

"Stepping Stones to Health" will be the subject for the lecture Sunday, July 13, which will open the mid-summer lecture series of psychological studies being given by Dr. Blanche Grosbeck Loveridge in the Biltmore hotel each Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Dr. Loveridge, whose lectures on mental and physical health are an established feature of Atlanta cultural life and who is the author of a psychological textbook, "The Light That Lighteth," which is sponsored by and sold through the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, declares: "One of the most encouraging developments of modern times is the fact that every day brings more and more convincing demonstrations that there is a sure way to health for everybody, which is both simple and effective. There is no need for anybody today to die in despair or to even let down in any struggle. Virtually every human being is called upon sometime to face an effort to secure and maintain good health, but the remedy is neither a secret nor the prerogative of any one individual."

Dr. Loveridge will illuminate the subject of health building through mental processes on Sunday afternoon, the lecture being open to the public.

Can you clean a French poodle?

It was a startling question. Thousands of different kinds of articles are sent to us to be cleaned, but—a French poodle!

A moment's conversation, however, revealed the fact that it was a toy—and a white poodle with flowing, silvery hair that would delight a child's heart. Moths had gone into the hair and it was falling out. What could we do to stop it?

The answer was simply—dry clean it! Few people realize that dry-cleaning is sure death to moths—and moths are not likely to attack an article that has been newly dry-cleaned.

Before you put away your heavier clothing for the summer season, see that it is first dry-cleaned.

We pay return postage.

Fair-Weather Wives

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

FROM AN UNEXPECTED QUARTER

Marjorie was about to step into the car that would bear her into town, when another machine swung around a corner of the drive and halted at the portico.

Dr. Danby, Ivan's physician, stepped out, briskly professional, bearing his neat little hat.

"Ah, Mrs. Hollister," he swept off his hat, came up to her smiling. "I'm glad I met you before you got away. I have good news. Will it inconvenience you to give me a few minutes?"

"Not at all, I have plenty of time," Marjorie bade Horton wait and led the way to the library. She was debating whether or not to tell the doctor of Ivan's attempt to take his own life, and decided that, since she was so soon to rescue him from his slough of despond by securing from Hollister the price of his operation, it was unnecessary to give away Ivan's secret.

"I wanted to talk this over with you, Mrs. Hollister, before breaking the news to our patient. I thought perhaps you could tell me how best to approach your brother-in-law, for," he shrugged, smiling, "it's rather a delicate situation."

The doctor had long left Leila out of his calculations. His keen professional eyes had sized up the situation. He recognized the disinterest of the wife, and turned to Marjorie for cooperation.

"You see, it's this way," the doctor, seated in a comfortable chair across the table from Marjorie, fitted his slender, surgically fingers together neatly. He looked at them, not at Marjorie. "Mr. Erskine's case is a most unusual one, one quite worthy of scientific research. To study his malady, complete his cure, would be a valuable addition to our medical knowledge. Now it happens," he fitted his fingers at bit under her absorbed gaze.

"It happens that I was speaking of your brother-in-law's case to one of our most indefatigable patrons of science—oh, not by name, you understand," he added hastily, "a case is merely a number in such discussions, a professional ethics, you know. Well, to return, this patron, who is a very wealthy man by the way, wishes the operation to be performed at his expense in the interest of science. He wishes that understood. He will never hear of you; you will never hear of him; the price of Ivan and my sister to decide. You're quite sure," she asked slowly, "that this isn't charity, isn't personal?"

"Not in the least, my dear young lady," the physician answered suavely. "Put your mind quite at rest on that point. I have our patron's own personal assurance that he is interested in this case purely in the interest of science."

He rose and picked up his bag. "I will go to the office now. Do you think perhaps it would be better for you to put the matter to rest in case he—er—feels some hesitancy about accepting outside aid—or will my explanation be quite satisfactory?"

Marjorie smiled faintly. After Ivan's willingness to let her sacrifice the vestige of her pride and self-respect by asking Reed Hollister for aid, there wasn't much danger of his being squeamish when succor came from this new and unexpected quarter.

After the doctor had gone up, she told Hutchins to send the car away.

"I'll do it," promised Cora Forester. (Copyright, 1924, for The Constitution.)

Miss Mobley Weds W. T. Dixon at Home Ceremony

Corvinton, Ga., July 9.—The marriage of Miss Julia Esther Mobley and William Thomas Dixon, of Kingston, N. C., was an interesting event taking place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert Marvin Mobley, on Wednesday, July 9, at 5:30 o'clock.

The home was effectively decorated with crepe myrtle and ferns. The ceremony was performed in the living room before an improvised altar banked with ferns and formed of pedestals holding lighted candelabra and baskets of crepe myrtle.

Presiding at the ceremony, Miss Myrtle Estes rendered two selections on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Fowler, after which Mrs. George Elrod, of Atlanta, sang "Un-til."

The bride and groom entered together to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Robert Fowler. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Tremblin, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Corvinton.

The bride's costume was of mid-night blue georgette crepe trimmed in ecru lace. Her hat was a fall model of black satin, trimmed with ornaments of the ecru color. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Sam Burney Hay, Mrs. Lamar Smith and Misses Inez Thomas and Allie Louise Davis. Miss Mary Sackwell presided over the bride's room.

After a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon will make their home in Kingston.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rouse, of Kingston, N. C.; Mrs. Grover C. Jones, of Marion, N. C.; Mrs. George Elrod, Mrs. Nellie V. Wells, of Atlanta, and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Moore, of Atlanta.

she wouldn't be going to town after all.

She went out into the garden, feeling an insane desire to shout her relief to the skies. She was released from her hateful errand. She had to humiliate herself by going to Hollister, and yet Ivan would be saved! If the operation were successful and he regained his voice, he would be able to go on as before. Marjorie would be relieved of their dependence. Once more there would be only her mother and Dan to look out for her.

It was a long time before she could keep her chained to Reed Hollister's bounty.

Again the vision of freedom, freedom to refuse Hollister's charity, freedom to marry Tom Grosvenor, floated across her horizon. She was almost afraid to lift her head to see how many times it had been a vanishing mirage.

She crossed the lawn to Cora Forester's and found that cheerful soul reading before a roaring fire. She broke the news of Ivan's splendid chances, and Mrs. Forester rejoiced with her.

"And now that it seems as though you were nearly out of your darkest woods, what about Tom?" Mrs. Forester inquired.

Marjorie, sitting on a footstool with her knees drawn up and clasped by her slim arms, threw her a mischievous glance.

"You might casually mention when you write to him that Marjorie Hollister will soon be free," she suggested. "He wrote me such a snippy letter that I positively refuse to answer it."

"I'll do it," promised Cora Forester. (Copyright, 1924, for The Constitution.)

Mrs. Sharp will preside at the luncheon as official hostess.

Mrs. Flora McDaniel Pitts will invite the out-of-town golf players for the game, urging them to take advantage of this opportunity to see one of the finest games played this season and at the same time add to the club fund, for which the game is being played.

Mrs. Sharp, president of the club, urges the members of the board and committee officers to make reservations for the luncheon Thursday day at noon, by calling at club hostess, Mrs. Simmons. The members of the club finance and house committees are also invited.

Tallulah Benefit in Chicago Wins Substantial Support

BY ANNA AIKEN PATTERSON.

Chicago, Ill., July 9.—The mission of Tallulah Falls Industrial school and the inspired message of "Sun Up" are deeply and firmly embedded in the consciousness of Chicago people.

The great Northern theater has been the scene of many a brilliant and dramatic event during its long history as a leading Chicago playhouse, but not even the most brilliant chapter in its glorious past can rival in human interest and dramatic intensity the climax of the benefit performance of "Sun Up" Tuesday night, when Miss Lucille LaVerne, distinguished star of LaVerne's notable drama, made an impassioned appeal for the mountain folk of Georgia who are finding in Tallulah Falls Industrial school the door to the larger opportunity in life which they crave.

The eager audience that crowded the theater to capacity hung upon every word of the play; at the fall of the final curtain the ovation that greeted Miss LaVerne lasted for three full minutes and until she raised her hand for silence, when she finally stepped out of the character of Widow Cagle to speak as a southern woman and the foster mother of a mountain child, the message which she put over was one that no one in that audience can forget, for she introduced her adopted daughter, Grace Taylor LaVerne, and let the child make the appeal for her own people—the mountain folk of Georgia, and the Tallulah Falls school, where she and three of her sisters found their bigger chance.

At the conclusion of the performance hundreds from the audience went back stage to meet Miss LaVerne and the representatives of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, who had come here to sponsor the benefit, notably, former Governor Henry P. Morrow, of Kentucky, who is himself a mountaineer and an outstanding exponent of these sturdy people; former Governor Benjamin W. Hooper, of Tennessee, and his daughter, Miss Anna B. Hooper, and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rosenwald.

Thousand-Dollar Gift.

The results already in evidence justify the efforts of the Georgia federation in Chicago, and the great work done by the federation in the north Georgia mountains.

Chicago has indeed opened her heart to the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and Tallulah Falls school and the message of "Sun Up" will live forever.

FUNERAL FOR LOFTON WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for John H. Lofton, who died Tuesday at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James T. Lofton, 50 LaFrance street, will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning from the residence of Mrs. Lofton, with Rev. Russell K. Smith, pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery, with Harry G. Poole in charge.

Mr. Lofton had been ill for several years, but his illness was not considered serious until he suffered a heart attack Monday. He was 64 years old, and was born and reared in Elbert county, Georgia. After spending several years as a mining engineer in the copper industry in Mexico, Mr. Lofton returned to Atlanta about a year ago, and had made his home with his sister-in-law since.

In addition to Mrs. Lofton, he is survived by two nephews, Thomas and James Lofton, both of Atlanta.

Members of the Georgia senate are preparing for a day of real activity when they convene at 10 o'clock this morning to consider the proposal to repeal the tax equalization law and the bill to amend the charter of Atlanta to permit construction of viaducts across railroad tracks at Pryor street and Central avenue. Both measures have been scheduled on the upper house calendar several times and postponed by motions of the authors, but it is practically a certainty that action one way or the other will be taken today.

The tax equalization repeal bill is a substitute offered by Senator Pace, of the thirteenth district, while the viaduct bill is in the form of a resolution, which was passed by the lower house last session and ordered placed back on the senate calendar at the beginning of the present session.

Outstanding among the business which occupied the upper house at Wednesday's session was adoption of a resolution drawn by Senator Pace, of the thirteenth district, calling a joint session of the legislature for noon on July 15 for the purpose of being acquainted with the accomplishment, aims, purposes and operation of the state highway department.

Highway Speaker.

Under the resolution the highway board will select one of its members as a speaker to address the general assembly, and other members of the board will be present to answer any questions that may be asked by the senators.

The upper house voted 27 to 6 to concur in acceptance by the house of an invitation for the general assembly to visit the city of Athens on July 16 to inspect the three state institutions located there with a view to obtaining first-hand information of their needs.

The senate passed a bill by Senator Carswell to authorize trustees of Georgia Tech to erect a faculty apartment house. The measure, which was passed without a dissenting vote, provides for the expenditure of not more than $85,000 for a site and building.

A measure by Senator Johnson, of the twenty-fourth district, to enable electric, street, suburban or interurban railway companies to hold and acquire evidence of indebtedness of corporations which own and operate motor buses or trolley cars, was passed by the upper house.

New Bills Read.

The following bills were read for third time Wednesday and passed: To create a city court in Candler county; to abolish the city court of Greensboro; to create a city court at Wrightsville; to amend the act incorporating Junction City.

Six new bills were introduced Wednesday, which were as follows: By Senator Kennedy, of the forty-ninth district: To create a state board of plumbing and authorize the state board of health to make plumbing rules.

By Senator Mason, of the thirtieth district: To regulate and limit arguments by counsel in all civil and criminal cases in city and superior courts, not more than two to each side.

By Senator Greene, of the forty-third district, and Senator Hamby, of the fortieth district: To amend the state code to revise salaries in the department of geology.

By Senator Garrison, of the thirty-third district: To authorize Banks and Habersham counties to improve the highway in the town of Baldwin.

By Senator King, of the eleventh district: To repeal the act creating the state veterans' bureau.

By Senator Pace, of the thirteenth district: To amend the state code section relating to principals in contracts.

A resolution was introduced by Senator Beauchamp, of the twenty-second district, to propose to the people by constitutional amendment that counties be authorized to appropriate money for advertising resources of the counties, not to exceed one-tenth of one per cent of the total tax levy of the county for the preceding year.

The state sanitarian committee of the senate voted to report favorably on a bill by Senator Ficklin, of the fifth district, providing that two members of the board of trustees of the sanitarium shall be women.

High Temperature AND LOCAL RAINS PREDICTED TODAY

Thunderstorms and a temperature that will range as high as 86 degrees were forecast for today at the local office of the United States weather bureau by C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist.

"No general rains are in prospect for Atlanta or any other part of Georgia," he said, "but showers may occur any place in the state, or in the southeast, for that matter."

About the same time July has been unusually wet up to date, it was stated, and may continue to be marked with occasional showers throughout the month.

The temperature remained above 80 degrees most of Wednesday, dropping below that figure in the early morning and late Wednesday night. Above the normal conditions that prevailed Wednesday are to prevail today, it was stated.

MOTHER, DAUGHTER SLIGHTLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. M. M. Langley, of Rossmore, Ala., and her 13-year-old daughter, Hazel, were slightly injured Wednesday noon when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a machine driven by J. B. Ardana, of 255 Glenwood avenue, at Oakland avenue and East Fair street. Mrs. Langley's husband and Walter Brasler, driver, also of Rossmore, escaped unhurt.

An eminent obstetrician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend," Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only ten or fifteen minutes." LIKE THIS.
By Richard Cruse.
Christopher Good was much aloof
When walking with a Miss;
And blushed quite red when one had said
Why must we walk like this?
She then remarked if you're not "parked,"
Oh, pray come nearer, Chris.
He clasp came then to the dame
And so they walked like this.

Her home they reached and there she preached
The virtue of a kiss.
He reached for her, she did not stir,
And then they were like this.

The Reason.
Blackstone: "No matter where he goes he always gets credit." Webster: "Yes, but he never goes to the same place twice!"
—E. H. D.

Meant Business.
A burly negro entered a hardware store with "blood in his eye."
"Ah wants a razor," he roared at the clerk.
"Do you want a safety razor?"
asked the clerk, politely.
"Now," said the customer, "Ah wants one ob de most dangerous razzers what yo' got!"
—Little Bill.

Comparatively Speaking.
Molecules and atoms
May be rated very small;
But they can't compare, on Fridays,
With my bankroll at all!
—Alex D. Wiener.

A Fable.
It was a dark, gloomy night, and the road was lonely.
A tire had blown out. The heart of the man was very black, and he was alone.

It was another night, more gloomy and lonely than the first.
Bang!
A tire had blown out. The heart of the same man was filled with joy and he grinned into the night. He had his girl with him.

Is like a thorn upon a rose.

While better men go off to work.

There still is sunlight for tomorrow.

The Modern Mother.

Colleen: "She'd swear I was stealing her cigarettes again!"
—Louise Benda.

Fitting.

"Well, he's stubborn, and he's al-

Church News.

The Matter With Banty.

"What in creation was the matter yurabouts?" asked an interested neighbor. "I could hear one of the kids yelling clear down to the creek."
"Well, I'll tell you," replied Gap Johnson, of Rumpus Ridge. "Wife was sewing a patch on the seat of Banty's pants, with Banty inside of 'em be'cuz he didn't have any others to put on, when Mizus Giggery dropper in and began telling wife a mess of scandal. It got more and more interesting, and wife sewed faster and faster and paid less and less attention to what she was doing, and got so excited over the story that she never even heered Banty's howls!"

Innings and Juggings.

His office hours were on his door.
He kept them? Yes—like fun!
He golfed the while that lying sign
Read: "In from ten to one."

At last there came a client
Who did not swear or pout.
But underneath those hopeful words Wrote: "Ten to one you're out!"
—Sarah Redington.

DRY RAG FLUTTERINGS
As Reported by Jay B. Iden.

Ezra Pingie, of Clover Leaf farm, who keeps summer boarders, was leaning on the front fence talking to a new arrival the other day, when out in the meadow near the river a young man clad in a bathing suit leaped high in the air and detoured to the ground, his outstretched arms lending considerable grace to his movements.

When he touched earth again his rebound was magnificent. Then, like an excited fawn, he leaped and ran across the meadow, where he ended his exhibition with a most beautiful dive over the older bushes into the river.

"Interpretive dancer?" asked the new boarder.
"None, bumble bee," said Ezra Pingie.

White Fang

BY JACK LONDON

A few minutes later, Henry, who was now traveling behind the sled, emitted a low, warning whistle. Bill turned and looked, then quietly stopped the dogs. To the rear, from around the last bend and plainly into view, on the very trail they had just covered, trotted a furry, slinking form. Its nose was to the trail, and it trotted with a peculiar, sliding, effortless gait. When they halted, it halted, throwing up its head and regarding them steadily with nostrils that twitched as it caught and studied the scent of them.

"It's the she-wolf," Bill whispered.
The dogs had lain down in the snow, and he walked past them to join his partner at the sled. Together they watched the strange animal that had pursued them for days and that had already accomplished the destruction of half their dog-team.

After a searching scrutiny, the animal trotted forward a few steps.
This it repeated several times, till it was a short hundred yards away.
It paused, head up, close by a clump of spruce trees, and with sight and scent studied the outline of the watching men. It looked at them in a strangely wistful way, after the manner of a dog; but in its wis-tfulness there was none of the dog affection. It was a wistfulness bred of hunger, as cruel as its own fangs, as merciless as the frost itself.

It was large for a wolf, its gaunt frame advertising the lines of an animal that was among the largest of its kind.

"Stands pretty close to two feet at a half at the shoulders," Henry commented. "An' I'll bet it ain't far from five feet long."

"Kind of strange color for a wolf," was Bill's criticism. "I never seen a red wolf before. Looks almost cinnamon to me."

The animal was certainly not cinnamon-colored, its coat was the true wolf-coat. The dominant color was gray, and yet there was to it a faint reddish hue—a hue that was baffling, that appeared and disappeared, that was more like an illusion of the vision, now gray, distinctly gray, and again giving hints

"Hello, you husky!" he called.

consciously lowering his voice to a whisper because of what he meditated. "We've got three cartridges.
But it's a dead shot. Couldn't miss it. It's got away with three of our dogs, an' we oughter put a stop to it. What d'ye say?"

Henry nodded his consent. Bill cautiously slipped the gun from under the sled-lashing. The gun was on the way to his shoulder, but it never got there. For in that instant the she-wolf leaped sideways from the trail into the clump of spruce trees and disappeared.

The two men looked at each other.
Henry whistled long and compre-hendingly.

"I might have known it," Bill chided himself aloud, as he replaced the gun. "Of course a wolf that knows enough to come in with the dogs at feedin' time, 'd know all the signs of playing out. And about shooting-irons. I tell you right now, Henry, that critter's the cause of all our trouble. We'd have six dogs at the present time 'stead of three, if it wasn't for her. An' I tell you right now, Henry, I'm goin' to get her. She's too smart to be shot in the open. But I'm goin' to lay for her. I'll bushwhack her as sure as my name is Bill."

"You needn't stray off to far in doin' it," his partner admonished.
"If that pack ever starts to jump you, them three cartridges'd be with no more'n three whoops in hell.
Them animals is damn hungry, an'
once they start in, they'll sure get you, Bill."

They camped early that night.
Three dogs could not drag the sled so fast nor for so long hours as six could, and they were showing unmistakable signs of playing out. And the men went early to bed, Bill first seeing to it that the dogs were tied out of gnawing-reach of one another.

But the wolves were growing bolder, and the men were aroused more than once from their sleep. So near did the wolves approach, that the dogs became frantic with terror, and it was necessary to replenish the fire from time to time in order to keep the adventurous marauders at safer distance.

"I've hearn sailors talk of sharks followin' a ship," Bill remarked, as he crawled back into the blankets after one such replenishing of the fire. "Well, then wolves is land sharks. They know their business, better'n we do, an' they ain't holdin' our trail this way for their health. They're goin' to get us.
They're sure goin' to get us, Henry."

"They've half got you a'ready," a-talkin' like that," Henry retorted sharply. "A man's half licked when he says he is. An' you're half eaten from the way you're goin' about it."

"They're got away with better men than you an' me," Bill answered.
"Oh, shut up your croakin'. You make me all-fired tired."

Henry rolled over angrily on his side, but was surprised that Bill made no similar display of temper.

This was not Bill's way, for he was easily angered by sharp words.
Henry thought long over it before he went to sleep, and, as his eyelids fluttered down and he dozed off,
the thought in his mind was:
"There's no mistakin' it, Bill's almighty blue. I'll have to cheer him up tomorrow."

The day began auspiciously. They had lost no dogs during the night, and they swung out upon the trail and into the silence, the darkness, and the cold with spirits that were fairly bright. Bill seemed to have forgotten his forebodings of the previous night, and even waxed facetious with the dogs when, at midday, they overturned the sled on a bad piece of trail.

It was an awkward mix-up. The sled was upside down and jammed between a tree-trunk and a huge rock, and they were forced to unharness the dogs in order to straighten out the tangle. The two men were bent over the sled and trying to right it, when Henry observed One Ear sailing away.

"Here you, One Ear!" he cried, straightening up and turning around on the dog.

New York, July 9.—The feature in the cotton market today was the renewed strength of July contracts which sold up rapidly in the late trading on covering attributed largely to trade shorts. The price touched 26.40, or a full cent above yesterday's closing quotation and closed at 26.35, or 90 points net higher. Later months were pulled up by the July strength combined with less favorable crop advices. October advanced to 26.28 and closed at 26.23. The final tone of the market was firm with new crop months showing net gains of 43 to 55 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 8 to 35 points on relatively firm Liverpool cables and continued strength of the strength of the July position. The demand for that position was not general but offerings were scarce and the price shot up several points between sales in the last half hour of business. Closing prices were only a few points off from the best under realizing.

Private returns were published indicating that domestic mill consumption for the month of June was 260,000 bales against 413,000 for May and 542,000 last year.

TREND UPWARD
AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, July 9.—The cotton market developed an upward trend today almost from the start, although prices opened unchanged from the previous close in spite of a strong Liverpool, which was considerably better than day. July comparatively was neglected here, but the advance of 100 points in New York carried it here from an early low of 26.25 to 26.30, or 38 points up. October, which opened unchanged from yesterday's final at 26.28, advanced to 26.31, or 45 points up, while December rallied from 26.25 to 26.28, or 43 points up. The close was near the top, showing net gains for the day of 30 points in July and 35 to 42 points on new crop months.

The strength of July in New York, due to the pressure of the spot situation and the decreasing certificated stock in that market, was a sustaining factor here. The main cause of the day's advance was the fact that the weekly weather and crop summary showed the crop had suffered more or less from the recent unusual seasonable cold spell and from too much rain in the Atlantic coast states. This started shorts to covering freely and when, as the season advanced, they found contracts scarce they bid the market up sharply. Many traders feared the check to the progress of the crop might be the beginning of a period of crop deterioration, particularly as the official forecast promised unsettled and showery weather in the western and central portions of the belt and colder weather again in the northwest.

Exports for the day were large.
